Tunney assails McDonnell Douglas

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., whose state would have to absorb most of the unemployment that would result from a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. bankruptcy, Friday accused the McDonnell Douglas Corp., Lockheed's chief competitor, of behaving like "buzzards," ready "to begin picking over the carcass of Lockheed before there is a carcass."

McDonnell Douglas makes the DC10 jetliner which would face competition from Lockheed's L1011 TriStar. The TriStar can be built only if an administration-backed loan guarantee bill passes.

But angry charges flew, too, from the other side of the issue.

Daniel J. Haughton,

chairman of the board of Lockheed, was accused in the angry debate of arrogance and "insulting" the Senate by meddling in discussions which will determine his company's survival. Lockheed is seeking a U.S. guarantee of $250 million in loans under the bill.

Haughton had issued a statement saying Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., was filibustering the bill and denying Lockheed employees, stockholders, customers and subcontractors the chance to have their fate decided in a straight vote.

"He's not going to tell me what to do on the floor of the Senate," declared Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., in reaction to Haughton's statement.

Proxmire said the issue should not be settled by "intimidation" — a reference to what he called "the kind of coercion, the kind of ruthless action" by Lockheed on behalf of the bill.

Tunney made his accusation against McDonnell Douglas after Proxmire told the Senate that the St. Louis-based firm was ready to hire 20,000 more workers should Lockheed collapse and the DC10 sold to TriStar customers.

Proxmire said the 20,000 new jobs at McDonnell Douglas, whose Long Beach plant is out of commuting distance for furloughed Lockheed employees, outnumbered the jobs that would be lost if the TriStar were not built.

Weicker's economic interest in the affair is represented by the Connecticut firm of Pratt & Whitney, which makes airplane engines in competition with Britain's Rolls-Royce, maker of engines for the Lockheed airliner.

Weicker, taking note of Haughton's criticism of Proxmire, said, "I consider this totally ironic. I con-

Sex-change case

'Other woman' sued

The other woman in a $1.5-million lawsuit filed in Superior Court by an Orange County housewife is her husband.

He changed sexes.

The suit was filed in Santa Ana by Doris J. Burnell of 119 Wingfoot St., Placentia, and names as defendants her husband, Maurice, and a Hollywood physician, Dr. Roy J. Catzone.

Mrs. Burnell said in her suit the operation to change her husband's sex from male to female was done over her objections and that it violated the Burnells' marriage contract.

She has already filed for a divorce, charging that the sex change is now complete and "two women are sharing the family home" rather than husband and wife.

She said the operation caused her to become "ill, excited and so nervous" she suffered a collapse.

She said she became aware of her husband's plan to change his sex on July 9, 1970, and immediately "counseled, urged, advised and cajoled" her husband and Dr. Catzone to abandon plans for the operation.

The surgery went ahead on July 22, 1970, the suit contends.

The Burnells were married Aug. 5, 1964. The suit did not list children. She has asked $250,000 in general damages, $750,000 in punitive damages, $250,000 for destroying her marital status and $250,000 for the loss of her husband.

G-man kills hijacker

75-yard shot saves hostage

By RICHARD GOLDSTEIN

NEW YORK (UPI) — An FBI agent armed with a high-powered rifle shot and killed the hijacker of a TWA jetliner Friday on a Kennedy Airport runway where he expected to board a plane for Italy.

A hostess whom the man had taken hostage about two hours earlier on a plane which started a flight to Chicago was about 20 feet away. She was not injured.

AGENT Kenneth W. Lovin shot the hijacker, who was tentatively identified from papers he carried as Richard Obergfell, 27, of Passaic, N. J., once in the stomach and once in the left shoulder. Lovin was about 75 yards away when he fired.

The suspect, wounded in the stomach and shoulder, died in Jamaica Hospital about 25 minutes after he was shot.

The shooting of Obergfell, the first fatal shooting of a hijacker in the United States, ended a 2½-hour drama which began shortly after TWA Flight 335 left LaGuardia Airport at 1:45 p.m. EDT bound for Chicago.

Neighbors remembered Obergfell only as a quiet, neatly dressed man who kept to himself and worked for an airline at Newark Airport, but no one knew which one. His landlord said he moved about seven months ago without leaving a forwarding address.

About 20 minutes after the 727 jetliner left LaGuardia, the hijacker, wielding a pistol, grabbed hostess (die Maria Concepcion, 21, of Burbank, Calif., around the neck and forced his way into the cockpit.

A few minutes later Capt. Albert R. Hawes, 42, of Hopatcong, N.J., an-end of Runway 22 at Kennedy Airport, about one half-mile north of the TWA passenger terminal.

Police and FBI agents were waiting for the hijacker behind metal "blast fences" at the end of the runway. Eyewitnesses said the hijacker, the stewardess and the maintenance worker got out of the truck, at which point the maintenance worker was permitted to leave.

OBBERGFELL and Miss Concepcion, a short, pretty woman with brown hair and brown eyes, waited in front of the truck while a TWA Boeing 707 jetliner was towed to the location, prepared for a possible trip to Italy.

At an airport news conference, the stewardess, who remained composed throughout the incident, said Obergfell was extremely nervous and seemed concerned whether there was anybody in the car which they had followed to Kennedy Airport.

As a mobile stairway was being put in place at the airliner, Obergfell continued to worry about the black automobile, Miss Concepcion said, and at one point began backing away from her in the direction of the car, apparently to satisfy himself the vehicle was empty.

When Obergfell was about 20 feet away from the stewardess, agent Lovin fired a shot which hit the hijacker in the stomach. Obergfell slumped to his knees, then started to get up. A second shot in the left shoulder felled him again.

Obergfell's former landlord in nearby Passaic, Joe Celantano of Clifton, said Obergfell apparently wanted to go to Italy to see a girlfriend. Celantano said Obergfell had been expecting the girl, with whom he had been exchanging letters, to come to the United States.

Food prices leading L.B.-area cost spiral

By BILL DUNCAN
Staff Writer

Food prices which drove the cost of living to its biggest jump in 14 months in June continue to spiral and they threaten a third consecutive month of strong inflation for the Long Beach-Orange County area.

Grocers here reported Friday there has been no letup in unseasonal food price increases which were largely responsible for the .5 per cent cost-of-living increase for the area in June.

The national May-June price rise was at an annual rate of about 6.5 per cent. In the first four months of the year the rate was much less — 3 per cent.

One Long Beach grocer cited as an example a frozen pie item that jumped Friday from 43 cents to 83 cents — almost double.

He also pointed out that drug items are up "quite a bit" in the past two weeks. Canned corned beef hash that sold for 73 cents last week went up to 89 cents this week, grape juice that sold for 65 cents last week is selling for 71 cents today, soap powder went up 2 cents a box last week.

Is any grocery item going down?

"Not that I know of — not one item that I've seen," said the buyer for the market.

The June cost-of-living increase for the Long Beach area was smaller than the nationwide increase of .6 per cent, but it came hard behind an even bigger jump of 1.2 per cent in May.

AND THE combined increases belied claims by the Nixon administration that its fiscal policies are reining in inflationary forces in the nation's economy.

In Washington, Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson conceded that June "was not one of our better months," and Democrats said the figures prove that the administration's economic policies have failed.

Sale of $1.2 million in stolen securities foiled

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A 25-year-old clerk employed at a branch of the Bankers Trust Company was seized Friday in the financial district as he sought to sell $1.2 million in negotiable securities for $40,000.

Agents of the local office of the FBI staked out the spot and took into custody the suspect as he received the $40,000 in marked bills.

John Malone, special agent in charge of the New York office, identified the accused as Paul Gooch, a 25-year-old honorably discharged Navy veteran. Malone said Gooch had been employed for four years in the conversion and redemption section of the bank.

The suspect, who lived in a modest apartment in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn with his wife and a daughter, was said to have removed the securities before going out to lunch.

The FBI charged that Gooch had altered records covering the securities which had arrived in a "routine delivery" at the bank.

Gooch will be arraigned before a U.S. magistrate in the federal court building today.

Some 'feel like drinking champagne'

L.B. reaction split on eased abortions

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

A liberal interpretation of California's abortion law by the state Court of Appeal drew mixed reactions in the Long Beach area Friday.

A physician and a layman, both prominent in the medical world, saw it as the forerunner of quasi-legal abortion mills.

Mrs. Lana Clark Phelan, vice president of the organization, Abortion Law

Repeal, saw it as a "milestone taking us out of the dark ages."

Mrs. Sue Stolzberg, head of the problem pregnancy counseling service at the Long Beach Free Clinic, said, "Well, we feel like drinking champagne."

Still another, Dr. John Gwynne of Santa Ana, took a personal view. A physician openly defiant of abortion laws, Dr. Gwynne is facing multiple charges in Superior Court and he was wondering: "What effect will the decision have on my case?"

The court, sitting in San Francisco, ruled 2-1 Thursday that all abortions performed in California are legal if performed by a licensed physician in a licensed hospital.

The ruling eliminates two previous requirements — that abortions be approved by a committee of hospital physicians, and that abortions be performed only in hospitals accredited by professional organizations.

DR. GAINER Pillsbury, chief of obstetrics and gynecology at Long Beach Memorial Hospital, said the ruling will permit small and possibly under-equipped hospitals to do nothing but provide abortion services.

"An abortion is not always an easy operation and it seems to me that if personnel with less than enough experience to perform abortions in hospitals without all the required facilities the death rate will increase."

Hospitals should have the accreditation of the Joint Council on Accreditation of Hospitals before being able to provide abortions legally, Dr. Pillsbury said.

The commission is a private organization whose standards are much tougher than the state's.

John Brewer, executive director of the 232-member Hospital Council of Southern California, said he agreed with Dr. Pillsbury.

The court ruling, he said, will make California wide open to abortion mills.

Dr. Gwynne said Friday that despite the new decision he believes he will be tried and — if found guilty — will receive a heavy sentence.

"Orange County is very conservative," he said. "Authorities here are ac-

Astronauts take weekend off

Combined News Services

The Apollo 15 astronauts wound up their simulator training Friday, then began a two-day period of relaxation before Monday's blastoff from Cape Kennedy on the longest and most ambitious of the U.S. moon missions.

David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M.

Worden will take it easy today and Sunday, engaging only in review of the flight plans, while the countdown continues toward a launch at 9:34 a.m. EDT.

The wives and children of Scott and Irwin and the children of Worden visited the astronauts at their crew quarters Friday evening. Worden is divorced.

Daily thunderstorms had caused some concern, but the National Weather Service predicted almost ideal conditions for the firing. Light winds, partly cloudy skies and an almost unlimited ceiling were expected. Good weather also was predicted for the ocean down range from the launch site.

The Carrier Okinawa was steaming toward a spot 1,200 miles south of Hawaii. It will change its position daily and plans call for it to pick up the astronauts 300 miles north of Oahu Aug. 7.

A critical battery that failed when activated was replaced in the Apollo 15 lunar landing craft during the night Thursday. An investigation showed that it was contaminated with magnesium chips.

Trudeaus expecting

Margaret Trudeau, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's wife of four months, is pregnant and expecting a baby in December, the prime minister's office in Ottawa said Friday.

Trudeau is 51. He and the former Margaret Sinclair, 22, were married in March.

Arm reattached

A team of surgeons, who worked over a 16-year-old girl for more than six hours to restore an arm that was amputated by the whirling propeller of an airplane, said Friday the operation was an apparent success.

Ann Shelly, the injured girl, was reported in good condition in Los Angeles' Orthopedic Hospital.

The accident happened Thursday night at suburban Van Nuys airport when the girl was directing a friend, David Lasky, 18, as he guided a light plane out of a tight parking slot in a taxiing area.

Somehow, the whirling propeller of the single-engine Cessna came in contact with the girl's left arm.

The arm was severed by the propeller just below the shoulder.

Strategy change

Two professional trappers silently stalked a frightened, 9-year-old retarded, epileptic boy through the dense underbrush on Casper (Wyo.) Mountain Friday, hoping to save him from himself.

"We're going to need a little help from the good Lord and a little bit of luck if we're going to find him," said trapper Dan Shatto of Lander, Wyo. "The visibility in there is only about 50 feet."

The boy, Kevin Dye, has frustrated all rescue efforts in the wilderness for the past five days. More than 2,000 searchers, two Air Force helicopters and six search dogs have participated in the hunt.

Kevin strayed from his family during a picnic on the rugged mountain Sunday and late Tuesday, five searchers saw the boy running — with his distinctive sideways, right foot turned-in gait — down a steep hill across a small lake from them. Since then, Kevin has thwarted several rescue attempts.

Funeral services will be held Monday for Vance Brasher, 53, a retired Los Angeles police detective sergeant who helped create the "Dragnet" television series. Brasher died Thursday at St. Covina Community Hospital after a brief illness.

Liberian president dies

LONDON — President William V. S. Tubman of Liberia, a descendant of American Negro slaves and chief of state of Africa's first black republic for 27 years, died Friday in a London hospital after undergoing surgery for a prostate gland ailment. He was 75. (In Monrovia, capital of Liberia, Vice President William R. Tolbert took the oath of office to succeed Tubman Friday night. Tolbert, 58, had been vice president for the past 20 years.)

A Liberian embassy spokesman said Tubman died in the London Clinic which he had entered July 4 for a rest and checkup. During his hospital stay, the spokesman said, Tubman suffered prostate trouble and underwent an operation Friday. The spokesman said the operation went well but later in the day bleeding occurred and the president died late Friday afternoon.

Tubman was elected president in 1944 of the 43,000-square-mile West African country that was settled by freed American slaves in 1822. It was declared an independent republic in 1847. Tubman's paternal grandparents, who were slaves, emigrated to Liberia from the U.S. in the 19th Century after their master died in Augusta, Ga. His mother went to Liberia as a girl with her parents, who also had been slaves in Atlanta.

Bandleader Fio Rito dies

Ted Fio Rito, 70, one of the big band leaders of the 30s and 40s, died of a heart attack late Thursday at his Scottsdale, Ariz., home where he had lived in semi-retirement since 1959, it was announced Friday. Although in retirement from his days at the nation's big ballrooms, Fio Rito recently played an engagement at a Scottsdale restaurant, and was working on songs with Johnny Mercer at the time of his death.

Among the 236 songs he composed were "Toot Toot Tootsie," "Charley My Boy" and "Three on a Match." He began playing with the Oriole orchestra in Chicago when he was 20. His band, known for its sweet, danceable music, played long engagements at many of the nation's big ballrooms and hotels, including the Edgewater Beach in Chicago and the Mark Hopkins in San Francisco.

Personalities who played and sang with his band included Betty Grable, David Rose, Victor Young, Lell Ericson, June Haver and Lucille Ball.

He is survived by his wife, Irene; two sons, Gregory, Scottsdale, and Ted Jr., Bel Air, Calif.; a daughter, Michelle, Scottsdale, and a brother and sister. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Last wish

One of Charles Schaake's last wishes was fulfilled Friday when the last $800 worth of canned goods was taken from the shelves of his corner grocery store for distribution to the hungry of Seattle.

Schaake died May 8, 19 days after being shot by a young robber who ran from the store without any money. The case is still unsolved.

Schaake was described as a man who sold on credit to those in need, a friend to children and one of the few remaining grocers with a delivery service, which benefitted the elderly and shut-ins.

Shortly before he died, Schaake asked the remainder of his stock be turned over to Seattle's Neighbors in Need program.

DIAL 432-3451

ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Calling classmates

Q. Can ACTION LINE help me locate children like my 9-year-old son, who is retarded and has a hearing loss? We just moved to Long Beach from Covina where the school district has a special class for retarded kids who have a hearing problem. There is no such class in Long Beach and my son has trouble in classes where his hearing loss is not taken into consideration. I've been told that if I can locate other children with a similar double handicap, a class for these children could be started in Long Beach. Mr. L. W.

A. Parents who think their children might qualify for a special class for trainable mentally retarded students with hearing losses, should contact Edward Ahrens, Supervisor of Special Education, Long Beach Unified School District, 701 Locust Ave., 436-9931, after Aug. 2. A spokesman for the school district told ACTION LINE that "essentially, her information is correct. If we can find at least six or eight children with similar handicaps who qualify for classroom instruction, the district will do everything possible to find a teacher for them." He added that the same rules for forming a special class apply for a wide range of handicaps.

Humane? society

Q. My family and I are visiting California from New Jersey and recently we saw a seal swim ashore at Huntington Beach State Park. Two lifeguards and a man in a uniform drove up in a truck and the man in the uniform shot the seal and when it continued to move, he hit it with the butt of his rifle. We have never seen anything like this in New Jersey and we would like to know why it is done? J.D., New Jersey.

Action Line

A. The man in the uniform was from the Humane Society of Huntington Beach, and a spokesman for the society explained they feel that when a seal swims ashore on a populated beach, it is sick or injured. Since seals can have rabies and might bite anyone who gets near, the sick seals are killed. The dead seal is not checked for rabies unless someone has been bitten. "We don't like to kill any animal," the spokesman said, "but we have to if it is posing a threat to human beings."

Killer corner

Q. I live near Ximeno Avenue and 15th Street and recently a pedestrian was struck by a car at this intersection. During the years I have lived here, there have been four deaths and numerous injuries at this intersection because there is no traffic light. Most cars speed through the intersection. Can ACTION LINE get the city to install a suitable stop signal? F. S., Long Beach.

A. By now you have been contacted by a representative from the Long Beach traffic engineer's department who has explained the reasons for not installing the traffic light. The department has studied the area thoroughly and feels that a traffic light at that intersection would cause more problems than it would solve. There has been only one traffic fatality at that intersection which occurred when a driver crashed his car into a mailbox, an accident which probably would not have been prevented by a traffic light. Currently, there is a stop sign on 15th Street. The spokesman added that a traffic light usually does not reduce speeding since drivers tend to speed up to make up for the time spent at the light. The department installs traffic lights only to assign the right of way, not to stop speeding.

Platform

Q. I received an invitation by mail to join the International Platform Association. I have never heard of them but their brochure said their membership includes great statesmen. Can you find out how they select prospective members and how they obtained my name? Mrs. S. S., Long Beach.

Action Line

A. Members of the nonprofit International Platform Association (IPA) nominate prospective members and it is up to the nominators to notify the person he has suggested for membership. The IPA does not keep files on these referrals, said Augusta Silverman, contacted at the group's headquarters at 2564 Berkshire Road, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, 44106. The association grew out of the American Lyceum Association which was founded by Daniel Webster in 1831. It is similar to a trade association and its membership is made up of persons interested in oratory. The association's 68th convention will be held later this month in Washington, D.C.

Support

Q. My feet hurt! My friend's feet hurt! We have very high arches and cannot find shoes that fit correctly. We've tried nearly every stock arch support on the market and none are suitable. We've been told we should wear these ugly chunky-clunky shoes, but we're not that old yet. Can ACTION LINE help? Mrs. W. O. W., Anaheim.

A. Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Shops Inc., 412 Long Beach Blvd. and the John A. Metzger Co., 849 Pine Ave., both in Long Beach, can make custom arch supports to fit your feet. However, spokesmen for both companies agreed that if you have a very high arch and want comfortable shoes, you should be wearing oxford or strapped styles. Apparently, even a custom made arch support won't do much good if you wear pumps.

Blast victim rescued

County firemen cut through two quarter-inch plates on a tanker truck Friday in Paramount to rescue injured welder Robert J. Dalton, 40, of 1032 La Jara, Long Beach, who was trapped after sparks from a welding torch ignited gases. In top photo, rescue team prepares to go in. Bottom, Dalton is placed on a stretcher. He suffered a broken arm and flash burns, and was reported in serious condition. Fire Capt. Tom Brown crawled into the tanker and covered Dalton with an asbestos blanket to protect him from sparks from cutting torches.

Charges against Angela Davis stay

SAN FRANCISCO — The state Court of Appeal Friday refused to order that murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges against black militant Angela Davis be dismissed.

Justices John Molinar, Norman Elkington and Preston Devine denied without comment a petition filed by Miss Davis on July 13.

Her attorneys argued that charges should be dismissed because there was no evidence she plotted an abortive escape attempt in which four men were killed in an August, 1970, shootout at the Marin County Civic Center.

The petition noted the former UCLA philosophy instructor conceded she purchased four guns which had been smuggled into the courtroom at San Rafael.

It said the purchase of the weapons was the "strongest point against her. But it is not very strong."

It added there was no

MAN HURT IN HAWTHORNE FIREBOMBING

A man was seriously burned Friday when the Hawthorne office he was in was firebombed.

Police said that Gerald Newcomb, 26, pulled into a service station in Carson early Friday morning and stumbled from the car with severe burns.

After he was taken to the hospital he told officers that he was in an office of the Floyd Patten Realty Co. and Design Construction Co. when a firebomb crashed through a rear window and caught fire.

evidence "from which a reasonable inference can be drawn that she gave the guns to Jonathan Jackson with the knowledge and intent as to their use by him."

Young Jackson was killed in the shootout, along with two San Quentin convicts and Superior Court Judge Harold Haley.

Woodcutter, 57, found guilty of coed murder

NAPA — A gum-chewing 57-year-old St. Helena woodcutter, Walter Williams, was convicted of first degree murder Friday in the killing of coed Lynnda Kanes.

Other than hanging his head briefly, Williams showed little emotion as the jury returned its verdict in the death of the 20-year-old girl after 22 hours of deliberation.

Superior Court Judge William Blanckenburg set Thursday as the date for the penalty phase of the trial. He had given jurors a choice of five verdicts, first or second degree murder, voluntary or involuntary manslaughter or innocent.

UC aide guilty of tax evasion

BERKELEY (UPI) — William Sherris, 38, director of undergraduate admissions at University of California here, has been convicted on four counts of income tax evasion.

SP strike to cost growers millions

SAN FRANCISCO — California growers stand to lose nearly $3 million a day on crops now at peak harvesting stage if Southern Pacific railroad is struck, an industry spokesman said Friday.

The United Transportation Workers, representing 9,500 of SP's 41,000 employees, called a walkout for 6 a.m. today if negotiators were unable to resolve a dispute over work rules.

The union struck Union Pacific and Southern Railways last week on the same issue.

An SP strike would also halt commuter service between San Jose and San Francisco for 11,500 riders daily.

Southern Pacific embargoed acceptance of perishable crops and livestock for shipment after midnight last Thursday.

John Dardivanis, a co-partner in Admiral Packing Co. of Salinas, Calif., and president of Western Growers Association, said Friday nearly $3 million a day would be lost to California growers of 13 types of fruit, vegetables and melons now in peak harvest.

"These commodities will simply be left to rot in the fields because there is no reason to harvest produce that cannot be shipped," he told a news conference at Salinas.

He estimated a strike would have an estimated $11 million per day daily impact in the loss of crops and the loss of wages for workers in the fields and in related activities such as packing, processing and canning.

PICK MANSON TRIAL JURY

A Los Angeles Superior Court jury of eight men and four women was selected Friday in the second murder trial of condemned killer Charles Manson.

The trial of Manson, 36, for the slaying of musician Gary Hinman and movie stuntman Donald "Shorty" Shea is expected to begin next week.

At Los Angeles, Jay Bell of Sunkist Growers, Inc. said its member losses because of the SP embargo will be $4 million a week.

If the strike should extend to the Santa Fe Railway, named as a UTW target for next Friday, he said, an additional $2 million will be lost weekly.

Sunkist represents 8,500 growers in California and Arizona, 75 per cent of the total in the West.

Grower spokesmen noted that the embargo and a strike would affect supplies of California produce in the East. But within California there would be no shortages, since commodities are shipped to nearby markets by trucks.

The ban on shipments also will have a major effect on melon and lettuce growers, it was reported.

New shocks still part of Feb. 9 jolt

A pair of mild earthquake aftershocks rumbled through the Los Angeles area Friday but there were no reports of damage.

The first tremor was recorded at 3:38 a.m. and had a magnitude of 2.4 on the Richter scale. A spokesman at the Caltech seismological laboratory said the jolt was centered near Sunland.

A second aftershock occurred at 12:35 p.m. and was centered near Newhall. The seismological spokesman said it registered about 2.6.

The aftershocks, according to scientists, are part of the continuing effects of the disastrous Feb. 9 quake in which 65 persons were killed.

Tax board cleared on Reagan data

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger Friday said an investigation disclosed no evidence the state Franchise Tax Board leaked Gov. Ronald Reagan's zero tax return of 1970.

Younger wrote state Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, that his office had investigated the board at the lawmaker's request.

"Our investigation disclosed no evidence that the published tax information originated from personnel in the Franchise Tax Board offices," the letter said. "The investigation was conducted in conjunction with security personnel of that office and is considered closed."

The leak referred to information originally carried on a campus radio station that the governor paid no state income tax in 1970. Reagan attributed it to business losses.

The original report that Reagan paid no 1970 state income tax was made on a campus radio station by a Sacramento State College journalism student, Mrs. Rosemary King. Reagan later confirmed the report, but attributed it to business losses.

Reagan says Cranston using double-standard

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Gov. Reagan, a potential contender for the U.S. Senate in 1974, Friday charged Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston with using a double-standard on aerospace and welfare spending.

Reagan criticized Cranston both directly and indirectly in remarks prepared for a Republican State Central Committee fundraiser at the Town and Country Convention Center.

The governor said he has been considering asking Gov. Jack Williams of Arizona, "since we share water with them, if we can't share their senators — someone ought to represent the people of California in the United States Senate."

Reagan has said he will not serve a third term as chief executive of California but has left the door open on a possible bid for Cranston's seat in the Senate.

Reagan said opponents of such projects as the supersonic transport "are willing to see America become second-best and they don't even want us to try harder."

"They have a curious double-standard when they consider governmental economic activity," he asserted.

"In the same week that Sen. Cranston voted to scuttle the SST, sentencing thousands of workers to the unemployment lines, he proposed a special government loan program to lend jobless aerospace workers their monthly mortgage payments while they are out of work," Reagan said.

"This nation once had a slogan 'millions for defense, not one cent for tribute.' Today it is billions for welfare and take them from defense."

Senate panel approves widening state primary

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation designed to give Californians a wider choice of presidential candidates on primary ballots won approval Friday in the Senate Finance Committee.

Under the bill by Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, the secretary of state would place the name of anyone he believed to be a nationally recognized candidate on the primary ballot. Those wishing to remain off the ballot would have to file affidavits saying they were not candidates.

It's patterned after a law in Oregon. Gov. Reagan, who ultimately became a declared candidate for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, refused to file an affidavit removing his name from the Oregon Republican primary ballot because he was technically running as a "favorite son" in California.

Sens. Fred Harris of Oklahoma and George McGovern of South Dakota are the only declared 1972 Democratic presidential candidates so far but Sens. Edmund Muskie of Maine, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Birch Bayh of Indiana and former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota are considered undeclared candidates.

On the Republican side, Rep. Paul McCloskey of San Mateo has declared himself a presidential candidate. President Nixon has not announced his 1972 plans.

WRECKING BALL TURNS 'ROCK' INTO A HEAP
Alcatraz Guard Patrols As Island Undergoes Facelift

Indians gone, wrecking ball takes its toll on Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The clumsy, heavy blows of a wrecking ball have replaced the protests of modern Indians on Alcatraz Island, a rock surrounded by tight federal security.

Newsman were given a look at the island on Friday, six weeks after U.S. marshals ended a 19-month occupation by Indians.

The tour was provided by the General Services Administration, which announced that demolition of eight buildings was under way on lower portions of the island.

The buildings, wood-frame and stucco cottages and apartments, are hazardous because of vandalism and fire that occurred during the Indian occupation, said Thomas E. Hannon, regional GSA chief.

Rats now infest the buildings, said Hannon.

The demolition will cost between $30,000 and $40,000, he said, but there are no funds immediately available to haul the rubble off the island.

The main cellblock, officer barracks and the gutted shell of the warden's house are not being pulled down.

An eight-foot-high fence, lighted every 200 feet by floodlights, surrounds the island and is patrolled by two sentry dogs. An undisclosed number of federal officers and detection devices also are on the rock.

Debris is strewn everywhere; tiny bits of broken glass crunch under foot in the dim lengths of cell blocks.

The American Bald Eagle flying over the cellblock main entrance was painted with the word "free" dropped from its shield.

On the island's windward side and within earshot of the noisy wrecking equipment, there is a small abandoned Indian camp. Its blankets, campfire ashes and a small pile of bolts taken from some building lie undisturbed.

Several congressional bills would make the island part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area on which hearings have been scheduled Aug. 9.

The proposals would bring Alcatraz, Angel Island, Forts Mason, Funston and Miley and city parks under one system.

Bill to bar sadistic, war toys

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The author of legislation to outlaw the manufacture or sale of war toys in California Friday expanded his bill to ban what he called a new block of "gruesome, morbid, ghoulish, sado-masochistic torture toys."

Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, said he has discovered new kits in stores including toy pendulum decapitators, spiked cages, a torture rack and a bucket of phony hot coals.

"Since I started looking into this business, I've become convinced that almost every toy manufacturer has his own mad-scientist-in-residence," Burton said.

"These aren't the kind of toys I want my child to play with, and I think the vast majority of parents would agree with me," Burton said.

"I can't conceive of any responsible person contending that these gruesome, morbid, ghoulish toys, if they are toys, could contribute in any way to a child's good mental health."

Burton amended his war toys bill, which passed the Assembly by a wide margin May 6, to cover the new toys. The expanded bill is scheduled for hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee next Tuesday.

The measure is AB 1103.

Fire sprinklers
SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly voted 41-10 Friday to require all institutions for the aged, children or retarded to install automatic fire sprinklers by 1976.

Riles tells spirit of compromise with governor (so far)

By RALPH HINMAN
Education Editor

Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson C. Riles, California's top-ranking Negro state officer, Friday declared that he has had "absolutely no confrontation with Gov. Reagan or the state Board of Education" since taking office Jan. 4.

Speaking informally to about 100 school superintendents gathered for a training session at USC, Riles said that "We — the governor and board — have been able to work out our differences in a spirit of compromise."

"I don't know how long it will last," he added wryly.

Riles paid tribute to Dr. Alex Sheriffs, onetime UC-Berkeley vice chancellor who now ranks as the governor's chief educational consultant. And Sheriffs returned his praise, describing the official as "a man of imagination, ability and integrity."

Trouble was predicted early in Riles' hard-fought, successful campaign against Dr. Max Rafferty should he eventually win.

"Many people — including the press — expected a confrontation" between high state officials," Riles acknowledged in Friday's brief, rare public discussion of the political scene.

HE CREDITED "improved communications" beginning with a very warm, worthwhile interview with the governor in which "we laid down the ground rules" for averting potential clashes.

While briefing local officials on educational developments in Sacramento, Riles made two comments that could strike sparks among extra-sensitive schoolmen and other officials.

Straighten out any inept or inefficient school management practices that "every year send 20 or 30 districts to Sacramento to ask the state to bail them out" of financial difficulties, he warned a silent audience.

If corrective steps are not taken, "We (state education department) are going to offer advice to you gentlemen — even if you don't want it. Otherwise, we'll all go down the drain together."

AND IN a comment he labeled "politically inadvisable to make," Riles said "There is something wrong with the way we select textbooks and set curricula."

A statewide commission of educators appointed by the governor currently recommends texts and programs to the state board for its approval. Funds to buy books then must be legislatively appropriated and passed by the governor.

Although he made no specific recommendations for revising this long-standing procedure, Riles indicated belief that "teachers, parents and others must become involved" in the selection processes.

Lodging a problem for GOP convention

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Some of those attending the 1972 Republican National Convention in August might have a hard time finding a place to sleep in San Diego.

"They probably can find a room eventually, but it may require traveling some distance across sprawling San Diego County, which is the size of Connecticut.

The city promised 12,500 rooms for delegates and newsmen, but indications are that more might be needed and difficult to find.

"Some hotels have committed only 50 per cent of their rooms in hopes of retaining some of their peak season business," said Craig Mauerr, GOP National Committee press secretary.

San Diego County has 25,000 hotel rooms, mostly in the city which is spread out itself — 320 square miles, with a population of 710,000, third largest in the state.

The problem is proximity to the main convention site, the 13,500-seat International Sports Arena, five miles west of downtown by freeway. The site committee asked that the rooms be within 15 minutes of the arena and that the hotels have office space and press facilities.

The hotels which have guaranteed rooms are accepting no more reservations and, in some instances, are trying to reschedule those booked well in advance.

"Reaction to the selection of San Diego was mixed," said one local GOP official. But another compared the convention to a Roman circus.

Some complained the cost was too high. Others said convention spenders will leave as much as $10 million behind.

First to react was Virginia Taylor, a member of the County GOP Central Committee. She said she will proceed with plans to seek an injunction barring the convention, on grounds the money could be better spent.

"Our priorities are all backwards," Mrs. Taylor said. "It reminds me of the old Roman days. The people don't have enough to eat, they don't have health care, they don't have a lot of things they need, so give them a circus."

Another committee member, Gordon Luce, said: "I think it is a very great thing for San Diego. We got it because we have a beautiful city — a shining light in the cities of America."

Jim Bear, a county supervisor who opposed use of county funds for the affair, said he thinks the city should run the show. "They put it together," he said. "Now they've got to do the necessary planning."

Jack Walsh, another supervisor, said such conventions "are not suitable to be properly and adequately handled by our community. But we'll do our best."

A lesser rooming problem is the headquarters hotel. The Town and Country in Mission Valley has been the headquarter for most major conventions in the area, but it is nonunion and it is doubtful if the Republicans would want to create a controversy.

President Nixon stayed at the Bahia Hotel on Mission Bay after his election and expressed pleasure at the accommodations. This time, however, he probably will commute the 50 air miles to the Sports Arena by helicopter.

The arena parking area is large enough for a helicopter and should not be loaded with vehicles since most of the delegates will be transported by buses provided by the San Diego Transit Corp.

The prime hotel choice would be the luxurious Westgate-Plaza downtown. The one-year-old, 235-room facility has been termed "one of the most regal hotels in the United States," and its prices reflect the image.

The owner is prominent Republican C. Arnholt Smith, chairman of the board of Westgate-California Corp. Former President Lyndon Johnson was among the many notables who stayed at the Westgate when Nixon and former Mexican President Gustavo Diaz-Ordaz held their international dinner in nearby Coronado last year.

Police Chief Ray Hoobler feels his men, with aid from sheriff's deputies and patrolmen from neighboring cities, will have no problems despite predictions of demonstrations. He said it will depend on the political climate at the time, but his men are prepared.

Despite probable higher travel costs for most delegates, the odds are they will be glad they came to San Diego. The temperature is normally in the mid and high 70s in August, much cooler than most tropical Miami Beach.

Goldwater backs Nixon; lukewarm on China trip

By PAUL HOPE
Washington Star

DENVER — Sen. Barry Goldwater took a lukewarm view Friday of President Nixon's overtures to Communist China, but he strongly urged Republicans to stop carping about the President and get behind him for re-election.

"Complaints do exist and there is no way to hide that fact," he told a gathering of Republican national committeemen and state party chairman.

"But I want to ask all of you here today and to ask my party members of all shades of philosophy in all areas of the country to consider — and consider very, very seriously — the alternative which presents itself."

That alternative, he said, is a collection of Democrats who would turn the U.S. into a second-rate military power, put it behind the Soviet Union in technological progress, and lead it into a welfare state.

Until Friday the conservative Arizona Republican, who was the party's presidential nominee in 1964, had declined to comment on Nixon's move toward mainland China and the President's plan to visit that country early next year.

"I would caution my party members to remember that this nation's policy has not immediately been changed by President Nixon's dramatic announcement," Goldwater said.

"Despite all the speculation our President has made no new commitments on China. He has, however, made it clear that nothing will be done at the expense of the Republic of China and that he will not sanction any program for replacing that nation in the United Nations."

GOLDWATER said he was opposed to the admission of Red China to the U.N. "at this time" either as a replacement for the Taiwan government or under some arrangement for a "two China" policy.

"But I do not oppose efforts by the Nixon administration to improve the dialogue and the channels of communication through which some of our ideas can be placed realistically before Peking's rulers. In other words, if there is any chance that our President can persuade Peking to mend its ways and to stop exporting aggression and violence and war, then I say more power to him."

Most of Goldwater's address struck the unity theme that party leaders had hoped for at this meeting, described by party chairman Robert Dole Thursday as a "kickoff" for the 1972 campaign.

During his trip, Agnew criticized black leaders in the United States for spending "their time in querulous complaint and constant recriminations against the rest of society."

CORE's chief to visit Africa to rebut Agnew

NEW YORK — Roy Innis, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, Friday said he would visit the African countries toured by Spiro Agnew to rebut statements the vice president made there last week.

Innis said he has added visits to the Congo and Ethiopia to his previously scheduled itinerary of Guinea, Kenya, Liberia and Tanzania.

The CORE leader said he would visit heads of state to counter "widely publicized capricious comments concerning black American leaders."

During his trip, Agnew criticized black leaders in the United States for spending "their time in querulous complaint and constant recriminations against the rest of society."

Ted asks AMA explanation of 'threat' letter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Friday said he has asked a lobbyist for the American Medical Association to explain what he called a "blackmail message" threatening withdrawal of AMA members from the Democratic Party.

Kennedy said the lobbyist, Harry F. Hinton, had been invited to appear before his Senate subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure in hearings scheduled next week.

The senator has criticized the AMA for opposing his health care reform legislation. He said Friday in announcing the hearings that the organization has made no substantive response to his proposal, adding: "Instead their chief Washington lobbyist has sent what can only be described as a blackmail message."

Hijacker 'very nervous'

Stewardess not afraid

--'until I heard shots'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Idie Maria Concepcion, the stewardess held hostage in the attempted hijacking to Italy Friday, said she was not afraid during her ordeal until she heard the shots that killed the hijacker.

"I thought I was shot," the 21-year-old TWA stewardess said.

She said she and the hijacker were standing alone near the TWA 707 jetliner, which was being prepared to take them to Milan. "I couldn't see anyone else, it was only him and me, so who else could be shot but me."

"THEN someone started calling to me, 'Come here! Come here!' I didn't believe it at first," she said. "But then I realized it was all over."

Miss Concepcion, of Burbank, Calif., who has worked for TWA for only two months, was extraordinarily calm during the hijacking and in telling about it later. "I'm still not afraid," she said more than four hours after the hijacker first put a gun to her head, "but I don't really know why."

Miss Concepcion, a short, pretty woman with brown hair and brown eyes, said she first saw the hijacker minutes after the original New York-to-Chicago flight had left LaGuardia Airport. She was walking through the first-class cabin taking drink orders.

"THIS man was on the right side of the airplane, on the aisle seat," she said. "I think he came up from the coach section after the plane took off."

"He had a jacket over his knees and there was like this white rag inside," she said.

The hijacker was very nervous and sweating profusely, she said, and when he saw her staring at the white cloth, he explained that he had been working on his car before the flight.

"I was very suspicious," Miss Concepcion said. "Everything they had told us in training about the description of a hijacker — what they told us to report to the cockpit — fitted to a T."

"I wasn't going to the cockpit right away, so I wouldn't make him suspicious. I turned around and I was going to take more drink orders when all of a sudden I felt something hard in my back and an arm around me."

With the hijacker holding his pistol at her back, Miss Concepcion led the way to the cockpit. She sat behind the captain, and the hijacker sat behind her.

THE hijacker then told the flight crew he wanted a plane to go to Italy, and the captain explained they would have to return to LaGuardia.

After the jet returned to LaGuardia, and during the ride to Kennedy Airport in a commandeered TWA maintenance truck, the stewardess said the hijacker stayed at her side.

"He acted very desperate. He kept saying he had personal problems. 'If you knew...' he kept saying, but he never explained what was wrong," she said.

The afternoon drama wound up on a runway at Kennedy Airport as the hijacker and Miss Concepcion stood by the TWA truck. The maintenance man who drove them from LaGuardia to Kennedy was freed on arrival.

Near the truck was a 707 jetliner which TWA was preparing for the flight to Italy.

"We had to wait while the airliner was being prepared and he was getting more and more nervous," the stewardess said.

"There was a black car that had escorted us to the airport and he kept asking me if there was anyone in it."

"I KEPT telling him it was empty. I couldn't see anyone around us," she said.

The car and the truck were parked near a fence, however, and it was from behind this barrier that a team of FBI sharpshooters was waiting for a clear shot at the hijacker.

"As he pulled me back, I stepped on his foot and he got very upset. I told him it was an accident and we kept moving backward," she said.

"I stepped on his foot again, and he said, 'What are you trying to pull?' then he let go of me. I was afraid to turn around and I heard the shot."

who was Nixon's top domestic adviser until becoming chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, admitted that "very little progress has yet been made, and inflation is proceeding both at an unacceptable and dangerous rate."

UNLESS the nation makes progress against the rising spiral of wages and prices, Burns said, he is pessimistic of any substantial scaling down of interest rates.

Taking a gloomier-than-usual view of the nation's economy, the head of the nation's independent central bank also decried the United States' worsening trade picture and spelled out several countermeasures.

Burns told the Senate-Economic Committee the time has come for President Nixon to establish a national wage and price review board to investigate inflationary movements in the economy. It is an idea Nixon has rejected.

"There is a widespread feeling in the business and financial community, and there certainly is this feeling at the Federal Reserve, that greater emphasis on wage-price policy vital at this stage of our nation's history," he said.

CHAIRMAN Lawrence O'Brien of the Democratic National Committee said "the devastating report that the cost-of-living suffered its sharpest increase in 15 months makes a mockery of Nixon's continuing refusal to use the power of the presidency to hold down spiraling prices and wages."

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, said, however, that no change in policies is planned. He said that "we are doing everything we can to produce a policy that will lead to a

Pilot, stewardess get in hassle over liquor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A fight between an Eastern Airlines pilot and a stewardess over a missing bottle of liquor reminded police Friday of Capt. Queeg's search for strawberries in "The Caine Mutiny."

Police said pilot Capt. Stanley S. Hayden, 54, of Miami, Fla., accused stewardess Barbara Barben, 30, of Ringwood N.J., of stealing a quart of Canadian whiskey after he landed at International Airport here on a flight from Bermuda.

Detective Philip Cocchetti of the airport police said he got involved when he heard Mrs. Barben, wife of another Eastern pilot, screaming.

"It reminded me of 'The Caine Mutiny,' where Capt. Queeg accused the crew of stealing his quart of strawberries and he wouldn't let anybody off the ship until it was found," Cocchetti said.

The liquor was part of a cache of eight bottles the crewmembers bought legally in Bermuda and stored unopened aboard the aircraft until the plane landed here Thursday night.

Police said Capt. Hayden's accusations became so intense that he got into a screaming, arm-pulling, dress-ripping scuffle at the airport with Mrs. Barben. She finally had Hayden arrested on charges of assault and battery, breach of the peace and disorderly conduct.

Hayden was released on his own recognizance after he was arraigned here Friday. He then left for Miami to tell his version of the incident to Eastern Airlines officials who ordered a full investigation.

Cocchetti said the liquor was stored in the cockpit of the DC8 beneath a seat. He said when Capt. Hayden, the last to leave the aircraft after it landed at 8 p.m., reached for his bottle of liquor, it wasn't there.

Police said Hayden then went to the airport terminal, spotted Mrs. Barben and accused her of taking his liquor. Mrs. Barben snapped back that she had only her own bottle of liquor in her tote bag, Cocchetti said.

The argument grew hotter. Cocchetti said Capt. Hayden then lunged for Mrs. Barben's tote bag which contained a bottle, and in the process he grabbed her and tore the sleeve of her uniform.

Cocchetti said the stewardess was "very, very upset and crying" over the incident. Her screams attracted airport employees and she ran to the parking lot and met another stewardess, Rhonda Rosenfeld, 23, of Newark, N.J.

Capt. Hayden followed Mrs. Barben, then asked Miss Rosenfeld whether she took his bottle. Police stepped in at that point.

Eastern officials said the passengers aboard the 197-seat jet, that flew from Bermuda to Baltimore, and then here, had left the airport terminal before the incident.

ing on moralistic grounds. I think there will be some sort of charges brought against me no matter what."

Dr. Gwynne faces three charges of conspiracy to commit abortions in Orange County and three others brought in Los Angeles County.

HE'S to be arraigned on the third Orange County charge on July 27 and expects to go to trial on all counts in Orange County in September.

"I don't know what's going to happen in Los Angeles County," he said. "I get the impression they're waiting to see just what the state Supreme Court finally decides."

Dr. Gwynne pointed out his abortions were performed under clinic-like conditions in his office.

"So, I guess they've got me, in that sense, because my office — even though it's just like a hospital — isn't licensed as a hospital."

Mrs. Phelan said that "every instance" in which the abortion law has been challenged "in proper court tests" the courts have taken the liberal view.

"They've done so because it's only right," she said.

"Abortion is the only surgical procedure that's regulated in the criminal code. A doctor can perform a heart transplant in his office if he wants to and there's not a law against it."

Mrs. Phelan said she felt the hospital requirement of the law should be the next portion to go.

"This 'hospital' business," she said, "is just something that permits doctors to charge 10 times more than necessary."

"An abortion without complications," she said, "can be performed decently, quietly and privately" in an office for $50.

All the hospital requirement means, she continued, is that the "taxpayers have to pay $300 to $500 for the poor women who receive abortions on welfare."

"Most of the women who receive them are impoverished, you know," she said. "Women of position go to Japan or some other enlightened country."

"It's indecent to keep this matter on the criminal law books," she continued. "All it's done is create the third largest 'racket' in history."

"Maybe," she added, "this decision will help to rid this subject of some of its hypocrisy."

Mrs. Stolzberg said the clinic service is seeing 30 to 40 women each day who are asking for birth control information.

Ten to 15 of them, she said, have problem pregnancies and need public assistance. "The Department of Social Services this week invoked a policy which is causing many young women real problems, she said.

The department is refusing to pay for abortions of those women — usually girls 13 to 16 — whose parents can afford to pay.

"This is working against the very young girl, leaving her unprotected," Mrs. Stolzberg said. "It is they who can't tell their parents and this policy shuts them out and leaves them with no one to turn to."

Brewer said the court's decision probably will have to go to the state Supreme Court for final action.

This, he said, is because a July 12 ruling of the state court of appeal in Los Angeles on a similar case was in direct opposition to the one delivered in San Francisco.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles law firm of Musick, Peeler & Garret, which represents the hospital council, said, however, that the local ruling probably will have the force of law until the matter is decided by the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, Southland hospitals were waiting for the 30 days required for the San Francisco court's decision to take effect before considering whether to disband abortion committees, a move that might not be necessary if the Los Angeles court's ruling is upheld.

Of the larger Long Beach hospitals, only St. Mary's-like all other Catholic hospitals, does not provide abortion services.

sider it ludicrous ... insulting."

"Sen. Proxmire is not responsible for Lockheed's mismanagement, yet he is the one now being attacked," he said.

Weicker said Haughton was guilty of "arrogance" and added:

"LET'S make very clear — I repeat, very clear — the fact that at this point in time, the architect of disaster, Chairman Haughton, says to the Senate of the United States: 'We have given you two days debate on the floor' — he calls it a filibuster — 'on my $250 million to cover up my mistakes. I want it now. Anyone who is against me is against my employees.'"

He said Lockheed was guilty of "the most incredible record of corporate mismanagement that we have witnessed within our free enterprise system within our lifetimes."

Proxmire, accusing the company of spending thousands of dollars in a campaign to obtain the federal loan guarantee, said Lockheed lobbyists were flooding the Senate.

"He has attacked me for engaging in a filibuster when it is the only opportunity our side has to speak about the merits at some length so as to arouse the country and other senators to what is at stake," Proxmire told the Senate.

PROXMIRE held up a letter from a California employee of Lockheed who complained he had to sign a letter to Congress asking for approval of the bill to keep his job.

"This is something that should be debated on merits, not on the basis of intimidation," Proxmire said.

Meantime, 16 senators filed a petition to bring a vote Monday on whether to end the Proxmire-Weicker filibuster. They acknowledged privately they would fail to get the required two-thirds majority, but said they would try again Wednesday and again Friday.

Proxmire and others leaped on a statement by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird who acknowledged there was a split in the administration over aid for Lockheed.

SEN. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said Laird's news conference comments indicate that if he and Deputy Secretary David Packard "were members of the Senate we might have two more votes against this bill."

In acknowledging a division within the administration, Laird said he fully supported testimony by Packard before the House Banking Committee.

Packard, who had been lukewarm toward Lockheed aid in Senate testimony, had been opposed outright in testimony prepared for the House to the broader loan-guarantee bill that would make $2 billion in government-guaranteed loans available to failing businesses whose collapse would hurt the economy.

While he did say Lockheed needed help, he said the broad bill would provide a shelter to other defense contractors who get in trouble with cost overruns at a time when the Pentagon is trying to crack down.

THIS part of Packard's testimony was deleted before he gave it although House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., had him read it anyway.

Laird said he supports both versions of Packard's testimony.

Administration forces, meanwhile, filed a formal petition to limit debate. It was signed by three Democrats and 13 Republicans. The vote will be Monday.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he expects the first attempt to limit debate will fail. But Mansfield, who is opposed to the bill, said he thinks it has enough votes to clear the Senate before the recess.

TOY-PISTOL BANK THEFT IS FOILED

Sheriff's deputies captured a 35-year-old Orange County man after he reportedly threatened a Norwalk bank teller with a toy pistol Friday night.

Booked on suspicion of robbery was Roger Boillin of 9657 Avenida Monterey, Cypress.

Deputies said the man approached a teller at 5 p.m. at the Security Pacific Bank, 11716 E. Rosecrans Ave., Norwalk, showed her a pistol and handed her a note demanding money. She gave him $507, but alerted the manager before he reached the exit. The manager telephoned the Norwalk Sheriff's Station which radioed one of its patrol units.

The unit was directly in front of the bank at the time and captured the suspect as he left the bank's front door.

Ah so! Ship's missing bell found in Pedro curio shop

By DICK EMERY
Staff Writer

Be it known to landlubbers that a ship's bell is not just a bell. A ship's bell is her voice to her crew — it speaks with authority and command, it sounds the watches, warns of fog or fire.

Hence, when an inventory showed—last November in Tokyo Harbor—that the ship's bell was mysteriously missing from the Mitsui O.S.K. Line container ship, the 613-foot America Maru, a shadow fell upon the vessel. A substitute bell was provided, but the old authority was not there.

STILL MINUS the ship's bell which she had carried at her commissioning at Tokyo in 1958, the America Maru — a frequent visitor — arrived July 16 in Los Angeles Harbor, to become strikebound along with many other ships.

From there, this story jumps to a report filed Friday night by Detectives Chris Wuehrich and Charles Hull of Harbor Division police.

Officers received an inquiry Friday about a certain curio being offered for sale, at $125, by a San Pedro waterfront curio shop. The inquiry came from Captain R. Misumida, master of the America Maru. According to police, Captain Misumida and two of his ship's engineering officers had visited the curio shop Friday morning and discovered there an item of great interest to them.

Investigation indicated the item in question was a bronze bell, 12 inches tall and 12 wide, weighing 55 pounds, with a deeply engraved date "Jul. 68" and a name in Japanese. The bell has been standing in the shop ever since a wandering souvenir collector sold it to the shopkeeper in mid-1970.

Negotiations between ship, police and shop led to recovery of the bell by its rightful owners, and by nightfall Friday the bronze bell's rich voice — a voice of command and authority yet cheerful, too — was sounding again on the America Maru.

Faculty Chapman gets substitute ship revamp at 'Queen Liz' delayed as campus CSLB set

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Unanticipated delays in the conversion of the former Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth to a floating campus for Chapman College have prompted the college to use another ship for its seagoing fall semester.

The 850-passenger cruise ship, SS Universe Campus, formerly the SS Atlantic, will sail from Los Angeles Harbor Sept. 3 on an around-the-world cruise with several hundred college students aboard.

The ship was built in 1953 as a freighter and was converted in 1960 to a cruise ship to be used in the North Atlantic by American Export Isbrandtsen Lines. It is now owned by Orient Overseas Lines, which also owns the Queen Elizabeth.

The fall semester-at-sea cruise will take 3½ months. Ports of call include Honolulu, Pago Pago, Port Moresby, Darwin, Bali, Singapore, Colombo, Bombay, Mombasa, Lourenco Marques, Capetown, Freetown and Casablanca. The cruise will end at New York, from where the students will return to their homes throughout the country.

After reaching New York, the 18,000-ton cruise ship will be operated by Orient Overseas for five weeks of Caribbean tours.

THE 33-YEAR-OLD Queen Elizabeth, sister ship to the Queen Mary, was purchased for $3.2 million in May 1970 by Chinese shipping magnate C. Y. Tung and renamed Seavise University, a play on his initials.

After leaving Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where it flopped as a tourist attraction, the ship's boilers failed and it was taken in tow to Aruba, an island off the coast of Venezuela.

Repairs took three months and cost more than $2 million. The ship left Aruba May 2 and reached Hong Kong July 16.

The company said the vessel would be brought up to standards required by marine regulations. The repairs, estimated to cost an additional $4 million, are expected to take four months.

The Queen Elizabeth then will be put into drydock either in Singapore or Japan, depending upon dock availability. Drydock repairs are expected to take another month.

Original plans announced jointly by the Orange County college and Orient Overseas called for the former Cunard Line superliner to berth in Long Beach near the Queen Mary. The two ships would have been docked close enough to be pictured in a single photograph.

The shipping company uses Berths 246-247 in the Port of Long Beach as a terminal for its container operation. The announcement of the ship substitution gave no reason for the switch from Long Beach to Los Angeles as the point of departure for the World Campus Afloat cruise.

A special session of the Academic Senate at California State College, Long Beach, has been called for next week to discuss a reorganization of part of the college's administration by President Stephen Horn.

The meeting, set for 3 p.m. Tuesday, was called by Academic Senate Chairman Nicholas Hardemann at Horn's request for advice on the plan from the faculty body.

Horn plans to effect the administrative changes — designed to streamline curriculum and facilities planning, and spurred by the pending resignation of a high-level administrator — by Sept. 1, he said Friday.

DEAN OF Academic Planning Dr. Leonard Townner will quit his post within the month, Horn said, to return to teaching psychology at the campus.

Townner, who holds a doctorate in psychology, was credited by Horn with much of the planning and development of the campus' psychology building, completed this year.

"Now he'll be able to enjoy the facilities he worked so hard to bring here," Horn said.

Townner's position will be melded with those of two other administrators who deal with educational and physical plans for the college to consolidate those operations, according to Horn.

Several other top administrators will assume new titles in the reorganization, in effect becoming Horn's "cabinet" under a planned executive office of the president, Horn reported to Hardemann.

Two other segments of the reorganization will create an administrative post responsible for dealings with the college's faculty, and will make the campus' information and alumni officers "operationally responsible" to the head of the college's auxiliary foundation, Don Gill.

SEVERAL of the changes were first approved by academic senators in April 1969, under then-President Carl McIntosh.

But neither McIntosh, nor the next year's interim president of CSLB, Dr. Donald Simonsen, moved to implement the changes, knowing they had little time to, as president.

By special regulations, the Academic Senate can meet and take official stands at such meetings as Tuesday's without the gathering of a quorum of members, according to Hardemann.

Hardemann added that while special summer meetings were not uncommon under previous presidents at CSLB, some educators have opposed Tuesday's session, believing the meeting was called to avoid a full convention of academic senators, many of whom are vacationing.

Fanning new Navy destroyer

By JOHN LUNGREN JR.
Staff Writer

The USS Fanning, seventh and last of the Knox class destroyer escorts built by Todd Shipyards, was commissioned Friday at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard by Rear Adm. H.V. Bird, Naval Base commander.

U.S. Rep. Del Clawson, R-Downey, commissioning speaker, called on the 500 guests to support President Nixon's overtures to China.

"Regardless of political persuasion, personal preference, or private opinions of the Communist conspiracy throughout the world," he said, "we must support the President in every effort to bring about an era of peace."

The Fanning, commanded by Cmdr. Paul E. Treacy Jr., of Coronado, is named for Lt. Nathaniel Fanning, who served with John Paul Jones on the Bon Homme Richard during the Revolutionary War. Captured by the British twice, Fanning helped Jones defeat the British ship Serapis at Flamborough Head in 1779.

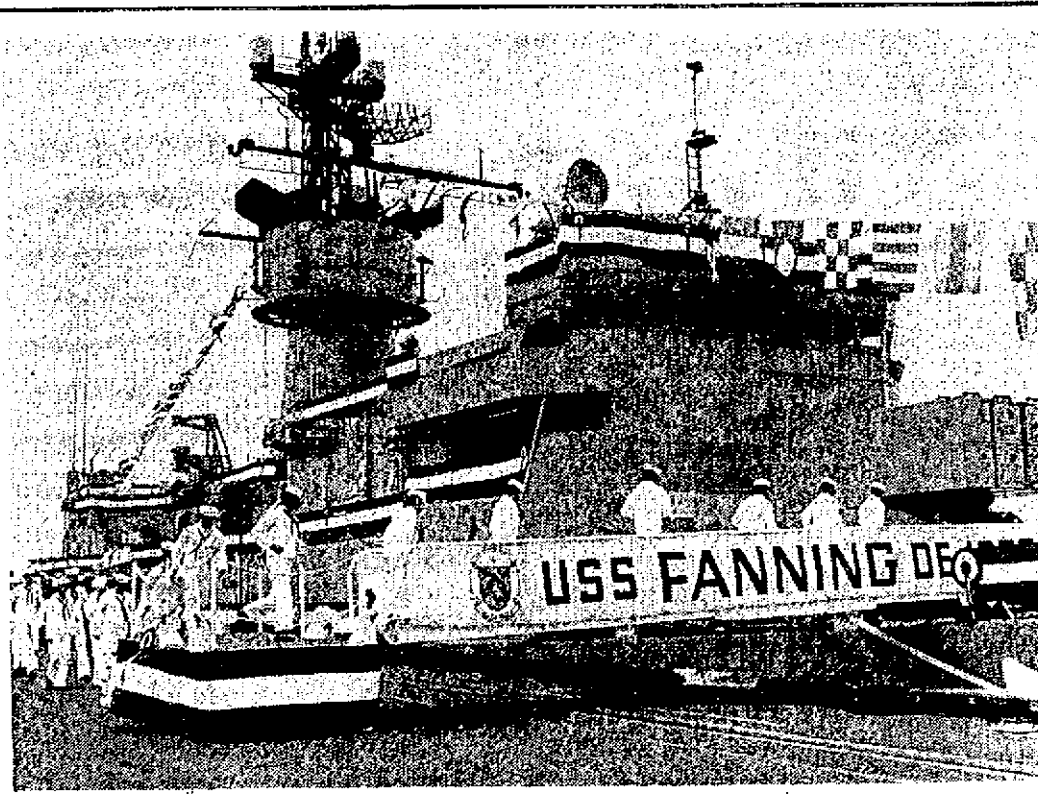

GUEST OF honor was Mrs. Robert H. Lathrop, of Old Lyme, Conn., great-great-granddaughter of Lt. Fanning. Officials present included Carl W. Lippincott, general manager of the Los Angeles Division of Todd Shipyards, and Capt. H.A. Gerdes, district supervisor of shipbuilding.

The Fanning's crew consists of 17 officers and 230 men. It is the 25th ship of the Knox class, designed for locating and destroying enemy submarines.

With the "Man the Ship" order, the crew double-timed on board and the Fanning became one of Long Beach's 85 Navy ships.

Fort MacArthur changes commanders in ceremony

Fort MacArthur changed post commanders in a retreat ceremony Friday in the flagpole quadrangle.

Col. George A. Clayton turned over the flag to Col. Gerald H. Shea, Maj.

Gen. Robert R. Linvill, deputy commander of the 4th Army, was the guest of honor.

Gen. Linvill pinned a Legion of Merit cluster on Col. Clayton prior to the command change.

The award cited Col. Clayton's contributions in the last year to the communities of San Pedro, Long Beach and Los Angeles and his work in improving living conditions for the fort's enlisted men.

The new commander comes from the staff of the commander in chief, Pacific, in Hawaii after serving as director of the Army's helicopter training at Ft. Rucker, Ala.

Col. Clayton closed 30 years of service Friday and will retire in Texas.

CLIVE GRAHAM, new chairman of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Armed Services Committee, presented Col. Clayton the chamber's Community Service Award at the reception after the ceremony.

The 72nd Army Band provided music, including a rendition of "Retreat" which was a striking improvement on the worn recording used at Long Beach Naval Station.

L.B. jury split in robbery trial of ex-convict

A Long Beach Superior Court jury reported itself divided 10-2 Friday in the trial of ex-convict Charles Edward Falk, 41, for three McCoy's Market robberies.

At the close of the panel's third day of deliberations, Judge Hampton Fulton asked foreman Lewis Dunning to say how the members were divided without revealing which way they split. Dunning said the most recent ballots, after about 15 hours in the jury room showed the 10-2 division.

Falk did not testify in his own defense, but three men serving prison terms for other robberies testified they also committed the three robberies at two Long Beach market locations. Six prosecution witnesses positively identified Falk as the false-mustached gunman.

Home burglarized

Burglars pried open a window at the home of Peter Racich, 244 E. 5th St., and took a television set valued at $50. Long Beach police said Friday.

INJURED BOY LICKS ICE CREAM SUIT

An ice cream wagon is a "Pied Piper," a judge agreed Friday in approving a $150,000 settlement for a young boy injured in San Pedro.

Guy Easton, 8, was struck by a car four years ago as he ran across the street to an ice cream wagon in front of 874 W. First St. He lost the sight of his right eye.

His attorneys, Richard Oliver and David Schaffer, argued in Los Angeles Superior Court that the ice cream wagon acted as a "Pied Piper" to lure children and the driver had a duty to protect them from other vehicles as youngsters dashed into the street.

JUDGE EUGENE Sax approved the settlement of a suit brought by the boy's mother, Mrs. Bonita Bologna. She and her son now live in Oregon.

The settlement was made by Melody Ice Cream Co., operators of the truck, and Mel's Shell Service Station, whose employee was driving the car which hit the boy Feb. 1, 1967.

In Long Beach Sea studies center gains

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Legislation clearing the way for establishment of a state college ocean studies center in Long Beach was unanimously approved by the Senate Friday.

Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, said his measure would allow tide-lands areas granted by the state to the city of Long Beach to be used for educational purposes. Tide-lands usage is now limited to ocean-related operations of statewide benefit, such as ocean commerce, navigation and fisheries.

The bill, which received a 28-0 vote and now goes to the Assembly will also permit the city to grant to the state college system land to be used for a headquarters facility.

In the lower house, a measure authorizing the state college trustees to establish an ocean studies center in Southern California, similar to one already operating in Northern California, is scheduled for a hearing next week in the Ways and Means Committee.

The measure, AB 2744 by Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, does not specify that the center will be located in Long Beach, but it is believed the state college trustees would be inclined to accept the land grant which could be made by the city of Long Beach if the Kennick bill becomes law.

The colleges administering the ocean studies center would be California State Colleges of Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Fernando Valley, Fullerton and Dominguez Hills, and Cal Poly, Pomona.

Burglars loot L.B. doctor's office

Dr. W. G. Durnin told police Friday that burglars broke into his office at 1737 Pacific Ave., Long Beach, and stole two boxes of disposable syringes and needles and other office equipment worth a total of $254.

$14.1 million in aid to local schools gains

By RALPH McCLURG
Staff Writer

Seventeen Southland school districts including Long Beach Unified and Community College Districts and others in Compton, Downey, Norwalk and Whittier, could receive more than $14.1 million in new funds under provisions of a bill which passed the Assembly on a 41-0 vote this week.

Assemblyman Joe A. Gonsalves, D-La Mirada, said Friday that 10 school districts in the 66th Assembly District will receive a total of $7,725,800. At the same time, Assemblyman Carley V. Porter, D-Compton, said six school districts in his area and the Long Beach districts will receive $6,373,600 if the bill is passed by the State Senate and signed by the governor.

Porter's office reported Long Beach Unified and Community College Districts are scheduled to receive $673,600, while the largest allocation in the 38th Assembly District is $3,461,800, slated for Compton Unified School District.

ALLOCATIONS for other school districts in Porter's area are Bellflower, $888,100; Compton Junior College, $189,100; Downey Unified, $519,200; Lynwood, $721,000; and Paramount, $521,400.

Gonsalves said ABC Unified School District, which serves Artesia, Cerritos and Hawaiian Gardens, is slated to receive $1,370,500; Cerritos College, $488,000; East Whittier, $780,600; Little Lake, $374,400; Los Nietos $200,300; Norwalk-La Mirada Unified, $2,711,800; Rio Hondo Junior College, $306,700; Whittier City, $447,800; Whittier Union

High School, $782,200, and South Whittier, $283,500.

The measure, Assembly Bill 144, authored by Assemblyman LeRoy Greene of Sacramento, earmarks $246.4 million for public school support and was passed on a straight party-line vote with every Republican legislator abstaining, Gonsalves said.

Gonsalves said, "By refusing to vote either yes or no on this legislation, our Republican colleagues were apparently upholding the governor's veto of the $100 million school appropriation in the compromise budget, although four Republican members are listed as coauthors of the Greene bill."

"WITHOUT" this state aid, our local schools will be forced to pick up a larger share of the cost of education and the state's contribution will fall even farther below the theoretical 50-50 basis. This means an even greater burden will be placed on local taxpayers or impose drastic cutbacks, which are already seriously impairing the quality of education of our children," Gonsalves said.

Gonsalves added that he is confident the Democratic majority in the Senate will support this measure or one which will provide at least the same amount of money, but it too faces a veto by Gov. Reagan unless the people of California demand that the chief executive accept the state's responsibility in this critical area.

"Should the governor veto the bill, the final recourse is an override of his action, and that will require 12 Republican votes in the Assembly and six Republican votes in the Senate," Gonsalves said.

Ruling date set for $12 million complex

Civic center for Bellflower

Supervisors Tuesday are expected to authorize creation of a joint powers authority with the city of Bellflower to build a new $12 million civic center complex in that city.

The board also is expected to approve a master plan for the development which is proposed for the present civic center site at Flower Street and Civic Center Drive.

The master plan was prepared by architects Anthony and Langford. It calls for a new nine-story county building providing space for municipal courts, offices for district attorney, public defender, marshal, and sheriff, plus areas for a district health center, library, welfare office, and regional office for the county engineer.

There also will be underground parking for 940 cars.

Part of the plan also calls for a new City Hall with parking space for 540 cars and a site for a future community center.

A spokesman for the county engineer's office said four of the five county buildings now at the site will be demolished to make way for the new county structure. The present courthouse, library and health and engineering buildings are totally inadequate now and do not lend themselves to remodeling, he said. The probation building, however, will be expanded and remodeled to fit into the proposed civic center complex.

Under the agreement,

Rededication, open house for Boys Club set

A rededication luncheon and open house will be held Tuesday at the renovated West Branch of the Boys Clubs of Long Beach, 1835 W. Willard St.

The city-owned building has undergone extensive repairs and now has a new shop, library and older Boys Club room.

Various Long Beach contractors and suppliers donated time, material and money to the project. The city paid 75 per cent of the cost of the renovation and Boys Club paid the balance.

Members of Painters Union Local 256 painted the building and the Freeman Fairfield Foundation donated $5,000 for resurfacing and lighting the outdoor basketball court.

the county and city of Bellflower will create a Civic Center Authority to raise funds for the construction. Once completed, the buildings will be leased back to the county and the city by the new authority.

The spokesmen estimated it will take about 18 months before construction can begin.

By Grand Jury

Hospital is urged to tighten billing

The Orange County Grand Jury Friday recommended that the county's medical center tighten its business procedures and collection practices so it can recover more of its charges for patient care.

It also suggested the hospital's collection department give "priority" to larger accounts and disregard the costly effort of trying to collect small accounts.

The grand jury found that "not all patients are receiving financial evaluations at time of treatment," so their ability to pay is not established. The hospital should set up financial evaluation records for all its patients, the grand jury insisted, and "if there is any doubt, they should be verified" by checking.

Hospital routine is that it makes financial evaluations on about half of its outpatients and on almost all of the inpatients.

But the grand jury said it found that salary and employment verifications are made on only 10 per cent of the patients.

After "ability to pay" is established, the medical center decides what portion of the patient's charges might be uncollectible — and writes that off. Under present approval of the county supervisors, up to $2,000 can be "forgiven" on each account.

The hospital had $19.4 million in billings against its patients last year, the grand jury found, but its collections were far less than that.

It found $14.7 million in "inactive" accounts which "probably should be written off" and $8 million in active accounts.

The grand jury said all inactive accounts should be segregated and assigned to a collection agency if not written off.

More attempts to collect for services should be made and "reminder" notices should be sent out regularly," the grand jury said. "The entire dunning process should be computerized," it was recommended.

Didn't want funeral Heflin's ashes will be scattered over Pacific

Van Heflin, one of Hollywood's most respected character actors who died Friday at the age of 60, will be cremated and his ashes scattered over the Pacific Ocean he loved.

Heflin, who grew up in Long Beach, left instructions that no public or private funeral be held.

The husky outdoorsman, avid fisherman and hunter was found clinging to a ladder in the swimming pool at his apartment house after suffering a heart attack June 6. He swam 20 laps a day, rain or shine. He lapsed into unconsciousness and never regained use of his faculties.

BORN Emmet Evan Heflin, son of a dentist in Walters, Okla., he was brought to Long Beach by his parents when he was 7. Here he became fascinated by the sea and, soon after graduation from Poly High School, hopped a freighter for New York.

In New York Heflin met a stage director who "insisted I had launched myself on the wrong career," and cast him in the play "Mr. Moneybags."

It closed after a short run, and Heflin sailed again, spending three years on freighters before he set his heart on a theatrical career.

HE MAJORED in dramatics at the University of Oklahoma and took a masters degree at Yale University's theater department.

He made his screen debut in 1936 co-starring with Katherine Hepburn in "A Woman Rebels," and had his first major Broadway success, also opposite Miss Hepburn, in the 1939 play, "The Philadelphia Story."

"He was very, very special and there's going to be an empty spot in Hollywood that can't be filled," said producer Ross Hunter.

Heflin starred in Hunter's box-office smash movie, "Airport," portraying a derailed passenger intent on blowing up an airliner.

"I'VE LOST a very special friend," Hunter said. "His talent overshadowed the rare gift he had of kindness, of gentility. He was a dedicated actor who loved his work and the people around him."

Among those who called the hospital to check on his condition were actors Henry Fonda and Glenn Ford.

"Van was one of the most respected and admired actors," said a longtime friend, publicist Art Wilcox. "He was a true professional."

Heflin was an ardent health enthusiast, maintaining a daily exercise program despite his advancing years.

"I can remember standing in the kitchen of his apartment, drinking his scotch and looking out the window at him swimming his 20 laps in the rain," Wilcox recalled. "In the rain... that's the kind of guy he was."

HEFLIN, a tall, bearded actor whose career on stage and screen spanned nearly 40 years, was frustrated in his life-long ambition to become a leading man.

"I've never played the same part twice," he said once, "and no one has ever said, 'This is a Heflin character' like they've said about Cary Grant and Clark Gable... I'm a character actor, always have been."

"Johnny Eager," in which he portrayed a newspaperman, earned him an Oscar as best supporting actor of 1942. The movie was one of 46 he made.

Among his other notable screen credits were "Green Dolphin Street," "Battle Cry," "My Son John" and "Shane."

IN 1950 he declared his independence from Hollywood's binding commitments, branching out into Broadway and television shows and numerous films shot in Italy and Yugoslavia such as "Tempest," in which he played the Cosack rebel Pugachev. Although few of the movies attained great critical acclaim, Heflin clearly preferred this pattern of professional life to the rigidities of a Hollywood career.

After receiving his degree from Oklahoma in 1931, Heflin gained experience in Philadelphia's Hedgerow Theater and at the Yale School of Drama under George Pierce Baker and from a season of stock in Denver.

On a vacation from the long-running "Philadelphia Story," Heflin went to Hollywood for a Warner Brothers horse opera, "Santa Fe Trail," in which Heflin had a chance to play a villain.

The New York Times' film critic, Bosley Crowther, did not like the picture or the acting of Errol Flynn as Jeb Stuart, but had praise for Raymond Massey as John Brown and added, "Next to his, Van Heflin's performance as a treacherous follower contains the sharpest punch."

In 1942, Heflin married Frances M. Neal, a film actress, and went off to war, serving as a combat cameraman with the Ninth Air Force in the European theater of operations.

Heflin's marriage ended in divorce in 1967. He had two daughters, Vana Gay 28, and Cathleen Caro, 25, and a son, Tracy Neal Heflin, 17.

Buddha's 2 flags, God for tots, vile words, celibacy, Advent

By MARK CLUTTER

Children and young people danced in procession to the insistent beat of drums. They wore colorful Japanese costumes. The yard of Orange County Buddhist Church, Anaheim, was lighted by strings of paper lanterns. The occasion, last Sunday, was a major Buddhist festival, somewhat like the Christian All Saints Day.

Each dancer carried two flags — the Rising Sun and the Stars and Stripes.

If anyone in the dreadful summer of 1942 had predicted that such a scene would occur in California, he would have been accounted insane.

One of the lessons of history is that the future will always be different than it seems at a given time. And sometimes, as in this case, much better.

We spent some time in the temple listening to a man explain the doctrine and customs of Buddhism. From time to time his little, blonde, kimono-clad daughter would dance down the aisle to tell him a secret. One cavity, maybe?

Buddhism, mostly unevangelistic, has won the hearts and minds of a large portion of the world's population. It takes only a little study and information to understand why.

A TRACT from the Back to God Tract Committee, Grand Rapids, Mich., shows a dopey little man saying, "The Bible is inconsistent and contradictory."

His friend asks, "Have you read the Bible?" "No, but I've heard a lot about it."

The Book is difficult — and even dangerous for the emotionally immature or disoriented. But it is the basic text for all Christians and Jews.

It is also fine reading for anyone who values literature. An agnostic told how it helped him through a difficult time. "I had this job which was driving me crazy with constant petty pressures," he said. "Every night I read the Bible before going to bed. I had to do it because I needed contact with a world that has dignity and beauty and wisdom. I read all of it. It didn't exactly make me a Christian, but it did enrich my life. I consider the Bible an important part of a decent education."

IS MARRIAGE necessary?

In contemporary America social pressures almost force everyone to get married. The person without a spouse is handicapped in many careers and gets few invitations to dinner. To be a "real person" you almost have to be married.

But should everybody be married? The divorce rate — almost one to one in Los Angeles County — suggests that many should not.

The Catholic Church traditionally has emphasized celibacy for the religious professionals. Now it is facing a crisis. Few girls want to be nuns. Priests are demanding the right to marry.

This is in the spirit of the times. But defenders of the old ways point out the substantial services of these celibates. The nuns in America have built and operated thousands of schools, hospitals and orphanages. The priests have guided their Church through some perilous times. Their contributions to culture and literature have been substantial. And many of them are persons who radiate joy to all who know them.

This is true also on the secular level. Almost everyone with gray hair remembers some spindly schoolmarum with gratitude.

THE BEST way for parents to start teaching small children about religion is to take down those crucifixes from the nursery walls," says Dr. Christiane Brunsellmann, who holds professorships in religious education at the Louvain in Belgium and Fordham in the United States.

She has written a book, "Religion for Little Children" (Our Sunday Visitor). It is based on her own experiences with her 38 nephews and nieces. As a young theology student she heard her brothers and sisters complain about the quality of religious education for little ones. So she opened her own family Sunday school.

Little children ask "Who is God?" "Where is God?" "What does God do?" These questions, she says, can be answered in ways children can understand — and the answers can remain with them for life.

WORDS don't shock this writer easily. I've knocked around the world a bit and known some rough characters and done my stint in the armed forces, but I'll confess to a bit of a jolt when I came across an obscenity in an article by a Presbyterian minister in a magazine of religious opinion.

Should such words, even in context, appear in a religious journal? Most standard newspapers don't use vile language even when it has a bearing on the subject. And when a clergyman resorts to billingsgate, isn't he dishonoring his role? And doesn't he lose his influence even with the classes who normally talk that way?

The standards of language, along with many other standards, have been relaxed. To an extent this is good. Words should mean what they say. Prissiness and snobbish affectations do not enhance communication.

But surely a measure of decency and good taste is still the hallmark of ladies and gentlemen. And intel-

Oscar winner considered law career while at Poly

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

There was a time in Van Heflin's life when he had his heart set on practicing law.

In fact, had he taken the advice on his Long Beach Poly High School drama instructor — Miss Lillian Breed — he would certainly have become a lawyer.

As it was, Heflin studied law for two or three years, then decided to abandon it in favor of acting.

It was, in retrospect, one of the happier decisions in Van Heflin's life. For Heflin, who died Friday at the age of 60, brought pleasure to millions of moviegoers around the world in his nearly 40 years of acting.

HEFLIN, one of the screen's celebrated character actors, got his first taste of the theater in Miss Breed's drama class at Poly in the early twenties. And although he was a good actor even then, Miss Breed recalled Friday, she thought he'd make a fine lawyer.

She remembers his coming back to Long Beach some time after the 1933 earthquake and saying, "Miss Breed, I'm going into acting. It's my first love."

"We tried to persuade him that law was a steady occupation. We knew he'd make a fine lawyer. But he stuck to his decision," she said.

At Poly, Heflin was a baby-faced young man with a great shock of curly blond hair that he wished he could straighten out, but never could. Because of his youthful looks, in fact, "he couldn't carry heavy parts," said Miss Breed, recalling young Heflin's desire to do character parts even then.

Miss Breed remembers him as "a fine student and a wonderfully fine person — very dependable and very well thought of. He wasn't vain about his looks and he had great charm," she said.

"I'm so sorry he's gone."

Heflin was brought to Long Beach at the age of seven and left the city shortly after his graduation from Poly in 1926, enrolling as a law student at the University of Oklahoma. But he made periodic pilgrimages back, often visiting with Miss Breed, whom he respected and admired.

HIS first wife, Mrs. Eleanor Shibley, lives in Long Beach and is now the owner of a boutique shop. She met Heflin in the 1930s, when both were connected with the New York theater, where Heflin got his first start.

"It was a wild, wild romance," Mrs. Shibley recalled. Although it ended in divorce two years later, Heflin and Mrs. Shibley remained friends. They last met at a Poly High School class reunion two or three years ago, she said.

Lakewood library bids to be studied

Of the 11 bids submitted for construction of the new Angelo M. Iacoboni Library to be built in Lakewood Civic Center, the Near-Cal Corp. of Santa Ana presented the low bid of $658,400.

The firm's bid was $99,000 below the official cost estimate. Other proposals ranged to a high of $724,595, according to County Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli. The County Engineer's Office will analyze all bids and make recommendation on the awarding of the contract.

The 24,550-square-foot community library building will be constructed on property leased from the City of Lakewood on Clark Avenue in the Civic Center. It will replace the present 6,100-square-foot library at 5100 Clark Ave., adjacent to the sheriff's station. Architects of the firm of Williamson and Morris designed the proposed structure.

THE PRESENT library houses an estimated 55,000 volumes in crowded quarters and ranks in the top ten in circulation of books and materials among libraries in the county system. The new facility will provide space for an optimum collection of 120,000 volumes, in addition to expanded services.

Included in the new building will be adult and children's reading and reference areas, a 100-person capacity multipurpose room, circulation area and staff workroom. It will be one of the largest community libraries of the Los Angeles County Public Library system. Approximately one year will be required to complete the structure.

Parked car rifled
Jane C. Sperry, 263 Belmont Ave., told police Friday that thieves pried open a window of her car and stole a stereo tape deck and 11 tapes worth a total of $180.

Mrs. Jackson will be arraigned in Municipal Court July 27 and Mrs. McDonald on Aug. 10.

Teenagers arrested in gun death

Two teen-age boys were held for juvenile court Friday by Harbor Division police after the pre-dawn fatal shooting of Gary Strong, 25, an unemployed San Pedro carpet layer, in a market parking lot at 717 Capitol Drive, San Pedro.

Detectives said a fight had started in front of a residence at 1317 Park Western Drive and continued a few minutes later, at 3:45 a.m., at the nearby market lot.

A pop bottle, a tire wrench and a small caliber derringer were used, police said. Strong was killed by a bullet through the right side of the chest.

The action claims Grady drove his northbound car over the divider to strike Bickel's car, fatally injuring the young man.

Have we come to the place that we are forced to compromise with Communism or live with senseless wars that defeat us internally? There is no question but that our involvement in Viet Nam has hurt us at home more than we have hurt the enemy abroad.

Certainly we would not choose Communism for America. But the fact that seemingly we are forced to recognize and become friends with Red China is a frightening thing.

What happens now? The church is forced to conform to the low standards of society instead of lifting society to high standards; politically we are forced to recognize Red China; religiously we are forced to recognize as Christian such organizations as the National and World Council of Churches; religious leaders and evangelists give Christian recognition to men who do not believe in the Daily of Christ nor the Divine Inspiration of the Scriptures.

What is the difference in President Nixon's visit to Red China in the political world and Billy Graham and Bishop Kennedy together in the religious world? No one questions that both Nixon and Graham are great men and doing great works. But "What shall the end of these things be?"

Think about it! "When the Son of Man comes, will He find faith on the earth?"

Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

'Overwhelming response' 'Superstar' shines brightly in Covenant production

By PRESTON REESE
Rock Music Critic

Ten families and friends pooled talents last weekend at Covenant Presbyterian Church for one powerful production of the rock-opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar."

A 37-member stage cast, aged 11 to 60, and a six-piece band gave a freshness to the Tim Rice - Andrew Lloyd Webber musical and an urgency to its message — the differences between Jesus Christ the man and the "Superstar" which in biblical times, as the show's program states, had much the same meaning as Messiah.

"Superstar" defines the differences clearly. Covenant's 900 member, mixed age audiences for both shows, seemed to appreciate more the musical as a statement of Christ's relation to modern times rather than take offense (which probably could have been easy) at its sometimes cutting examinations.

The Rev. Michael McLellan, assistant pastor for the church, said the program, produced as part of Covenant's annual Festival of Arts, received "an overwhelming response." The decision to stage the controversial musical came from a church committee composed of parishioners all over 50 years old.

The cast, which included 10 family groups, did an admirable job of portraying their characters to be as human as show's anti-star.

The original Decca recording employed all pros — and they sounded like it. Hanging from back-grounds exclusively in opera (Yvonne Elliman, as Mary Magdalene) or rock music's Ian Gillan, as Jesus, a lead singer for the Deep Purple, who will appear in Long Beach July 30, the English cast comes off at times, sounding as heavily beefed-up as "Olivier."

Covenant's "Superstar" was forceful through a kind of polished honesty. All performers were amateurs with the exception of Harry Rankin, a baritone who performed as Herod.

Judas, played last week by Steve Delphous, is somewhat the real "star" as the show's protagonist.

Opening the show, a week before the Crucifixion he remembers, "when the whole thing began — no talk of God then, we called you a man."

The story traces well-developed character sketches of Christ, as a man awed yet overwhelmed by the weight of his own Superstar image; Mary Magdalene as his lover; and the Apostles with earthy, human traits.

Lead roles in the performance were: Steve Delphous, as Judas; Brian Fox as Jesus; Susie Freeman as Mary Magdalene; Brett Zumsteg as High Priest; Harry Rankin as Caiaphas and Herod; Kevin Hutchinson as Annas; Dorothy Delphous as Simon Zealotes; Bill Dill as Pontius Pilate; Lucy Daggett as Maid by the Fire; and Jim Fromm as Peter.

PRACTICAL NUTRITION LESSON

Mrs. Kathleen Huff, dietitian, sees to it that young friends get a proper breakfast. Each morning at the big top Canvas Cathedral, 1800 Alamos Ave., the little ones gather for breakfast, instruction in proper diet and a story hour. It is a feature of "A New Look at God Crusade," a Seventh-day Adventist revival conducted nightly at 7:30 p.m. The evangelist is Clinton Warren.

lect depends on the precise use of words. The quality of life will not be enhanced if everyone starts mouthing the meaningless obscenities and sullen vulgarisms of the culturally underprivileged.

"JESUS is coming again! Soon!"

This is the very heart of the Jesus movement, The California Southern Baptist says. The young people believe that it can happen at any time. Some make no plans for the future because they feel there is no future in a worldly sense. Why go to college or buy a house?

The magazine comments: "It is easy to understand why the youth believe Jesus is coming soon, and even wait it."

For the last decade, youth have witnessed the decay of society. It has not been a pretty sight. The drugs, demons, witchcraft, poverty, alienation, riots, killing, assassinations, war, meaninglessness, impersonalization, hypocrisy, discrimination, pollution and on and on. through Buddhism, astrology, witchcraft, Eastern religions and mind-expanding drugs."

The Second Coming is a key doctrine of traditional Christianity, but after all the centuries most Christians don't feel a sense of immediacy. They plan for the future. Those who feel it will be soon, maybe today, live by a different pattern.

The Rev. Raymond Wirth, pastor of Grace United Methodist Church, tells in the church bulletin how he intends to live his professional life.

"My mornings belong to the total church, my afternoons to individuals and my evenings to groups."

He intends to spend three hours six mornings a week in sermon preparation and general reading. Another hour will be devoted to administrative detail.

Monday and Wednesday afternoons will be devoted to counseling. He will make pastoral calls on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Saturday and Sunday afternoons will be devoted to "loose ends."

Five evenings will be de-

Garfield Baptist hosts play

"Requiem for Man," a play, will be presented at Garfield Baptist Church, 2280 Caspian Ave., Sunday at 7 p.m. and Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

"Requiem," written and directed by Robert Camp, defines man's rejection of Jesus Christ throughout a lifetime. The play was given first at West Anaheim Baptist Church, Anaheim. The reception was so enthusiastic that it had to be held over a second week.

Camp has appeared as an actor with the Community Playhouse, the Fullerton Footlighters and other drama groups. His father, Roy, is the producer of "Requiem."

He admits this schedule may have to be broken from time to time.

Elder explains unlabeled church

By BUD L. WORSHAM

Ever since Christ established His church, mankind as a whole has misunderstood this divine institution. There is a natural tendency to classify all religious groups into one of three categories, giving each the label of Catholic, Protestant or Jewish.

We who are members of the church of Christ do not claim either of these labels. We find it difficult to convey to our neighbors the distinctive position of the church.

(The author of this article is an elder of Long Beach's Central Church of Christ, 501 Atlantic Ave. He was asked to set forth his church's beliefs in contrast to others. He is a member of the news staff of the Independent, Press-Telegram.)

Most people, in and out of religion, classify the church of Christ as just another denomination of the Protestant group. However, we maintain the category does not fit.

We are attempting to be in truth and in fact just what people were in New Testament time — Christians, members of the Lord's church. If the Apostle Paul were here today and someone should ask him if he were a Protestant, he would not understand the question.

Paul never claimed to be a Protestant. He was a follower of Christ, simply a Christian.

The church, as the pillar and ground of the truth, protests just as much against Protestantism as against Catholicism or Judaism. Christ's prayer was for unity.

The church, if it is the church of Christ — the one God's Son came to establish — cannot succumb to party names, to human ordinances or to the preaching of a denominational message.

Churches of Christ have no creed, except the inspired word of God. No conferences or conventions are held to draw up, or to revise the doctrines of the church. Each of the thousands of congregations is autonomous, guided only by the Bible.

Churches of Christ, in the absolute sense, do not teach anything; they simply hear and heed the teachings of Christ. We are endeavoring to be a part of Christ's church and encourage all men to join with us in going back to His church, the only church that has the promise of God's approval and salvation.

We believe that the only guide to heaven is the Bible.

All through the New Testament — which plainly teaches that we are no longer under the law of Moses or the Old Testament — we find the same procedure for being saved:

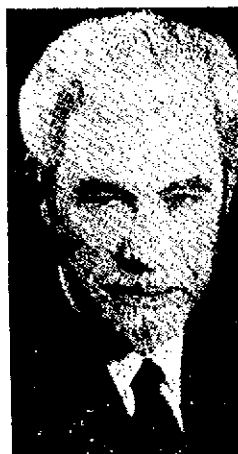

The gospel was preached, people believed it, they confessed Christ, they repented of their sins and were baptized. There is no inspired record of anyone being saved who did not do this.

We of the church of Christ believe that unity among religious groups must be based on the New Testament blueprint and not the notions or traditions of men. It is our prayer that all men will turn to God's word for direction.

Knights elect

Raymond E. Kelly, Costa Mesa, has been elected president of the Southern California Chapter of the Knights of Columbus, which includes 16,000 knights from 92 councils in Santa Barbara, Ventura and Los Angeles counties.

Other newly elected officers include Red Nelson, vice president, Encino; William Collier, secretary, La Puente; Dr. Luis Zeldin, treasurer, Los Angeles; and Frank Pellegrino, marshal, Downey. The Rev. John Urban of the Chancery office was appointed chaplain.

METAPHYSICS

The Rev. Joseph Kerr is presenting a series of metaphysical lectures each Sunday, 11 a.m., at Room 209, YWCA building, Pacific Avenue and Sixth Street. The lectures are sponsored by the New Age Philosophical Society. Kerr, a minister of the Gospel of Religious Science, studied under Dr. Ernest Holmes, founder of the church.

Faith cancels out fear, self-doubt

NORMAN V. PEALF

Passing through the lobby of a big auditorium in Louisville, Kentucky, on my way to the platform to speak to the National Dairymen's Association, I heard a fellow say, "The next speaker on the program is a preacher from New York. I'll bet you five dollars he couldn't milk a cow to save himself!"

The other man said, "I don't care whether he can milk a cow or not." Just interested in whether he can make a good speech." Just then they looked around and recognized me and were embarrassed!

"No, I can't milk a cow," I grinned, "but I'm going to try like the dickens to make a good speech." Afterwards I was shaking hands with people on the platform when these two fellows came along. One of them jokingly said, "Better take up milking!" The other man, more serious, said, "I came to listen to you because I've read your books and know that you, too, once had an inferiority complex and overcame it. Well, I have had a whopping inferiority complex. You have helped me develop faith and belief in myself."

Do you recall the old parable of the two frogs who fell into a container of cream? The frogs tried to leap out, but could not make it.

One frog was a pessimist. He began to think defeatist thoughts and the acids of fulfillment spread through his mind. He said to himself, "I won't get out of here, so why knock myself out trying?" In despair and resignation he sank into the cream and died. His epitaph might have been, "He died of an inferiority complex."

The other frog was an optimist. He was made of sterner stuff. He was a positive thinker. He said to himself, "Sure, I could die here, but if I do, believe me, I shall go down with every flag flying." He swam around, he thrashed about, he beat the cream, he made a great stir. Gradually he began to feel solid footing. His legs, whipping like little pistons, got traction, and finally he leaped victoriously from the container, the contents of which he had churned into solid butter!

Fortitude and faith are the important words to remember. That is what keeps you going when you seem defeated. And when someone believes in you, that makes it even better!

When I was in college I have to admit that I had a big inferiority complex. I was shrinking and shy. The night before graduation we had a dinner at our fraternity house. The president of the university was there. He said to me, "Norman, I want you to walk home with me."

We got to his house and stood talking in the June moonlight. Dr. Hoffman put his hand on my shoulder and said, "You know something, Norman? I believe in you. You've got some qualities and abilities with which you can do much if you will believe in yourself. Let me tell you something; stop shrinking and being inferior and afraid. Stand up to yourself and remember that your old college president will always believe in you." Why he did this act of kindness I'll never know, but that he did I will never forget.

Years later I heard Dr. Hoffman was ill with cancer of the throat and that he was going to die. I went to Pasadena to see him. "Dr. Hoffman," I said, "I came out here to tell you that I love you and always will, because one night long ago you told me that you believed in me."

He took a pencil, for he could no longer speak and wrote in a shaky hand, "I still believe in you, and I love you too."

Find someone who believes in you, someone who can give you faith in yourself. Faith cancels out fear and self-doubt.

CHRISTIAN COFFEE HOUSE

Vivianne Prevost sings and strums guitar in the House of Zacchaeus.

House of Zacchaeus to give benefit show

The House of Zacchaeus, a coffee house that soft sells Christianity, will present a benefit show at Pilgrim Hall, First Congregational Church, 241 Cedar Ave., Sunday at 7 p.m.

Singers Bill Welsh, Sue Williams, Cora Bullisma and the Cum Laude Chorus will present a musical program. There will also be a comedy.

Don Miller, soul singer, and Heidi Gross, who writes her own songs, will sing. "Running," a short play, will star Louise Marcello.

The House of Zacchaeus, 1327 E. Fourth St., is open from 8 p.m. to midnight Wednesday through Saturday. The manager is Todd Evans, who has completed his studies for the Quaker ministry. Gale Bailey is assistant manager. Allen Stone is treasurer. It is sponsored by the Inner-City Ministry, directed by Fred Newkirk.

Some adults visit the coffee house, but most of the patrons are in the 18 to 25 bracket. A principal purpose is social. Lonely young people can get acquainted.

Music and other entertainment is contemporary and not entirely religious. There is a Wednesday "Bible rap."

It has been open about six months. Attendance ranges from 30 to 60 per night. Zacchaeus was a little man who couldn't see Jesus because of the crowd. So he climbed a tree. Jesus looked up and invited himself to be the guest of Zacchaeus. The story is told in the 18th chapter of Luke.

Tower of Hope to open college

The Tower of Hope, Garden Grove Community Church, will offer accredited college courses this fall.

The new college, to be known as Hope College-West, will be an extension campus of Hope College of Holland, Mich.

"The college-level courses will be taught by dedicated Christian professors," said Kenneth Van Wyk, minister of education.

"Amid the non-Christian and secular influences of many colleges and universities, students need classroom exposure to strong Christian professors who can provide satisfying answers to the questions of today."

Three courses will be offered in the fall. They are literature of Judaism and Christianity, Basic Christian Thought and The Rise of Christianity. The tuition is $60 per semester hour ($50 for auditing students.) The courses are fully accredited by the North Central Association of College and Secondary schools.

Time lays light hand on priest

Every morning the Rev. George M. Trunk arises at 5:45 to say Mass. He then attends to his writing chores, which include a weekly newspaper column. He takes two 20-minute walks each day to keep fit. He enjoys three or four long black cigars a day. Many parishioners come to see him for conversation and counsel.

This is unusual because the San Francisco priest will be 101 years old on Sept. 1. He has just celebrated his 76th anniversary as a Roman Catholic priest.

Father Trunk is a priest of the Church of the Nativity, a Slovenian church. He writes for Amerikanski Slovenec, a paper published in Cleveland. He has written 2,571 columns.

When he was 23 every-one thought he was dying of tuberculosis. When he was 84 he was struck by a car. His leg was badly smashed and everyone thought he would die.

In 1945 he paid $6,000 for an insurance policy that would pay him $50 a month for life. That was a bad deal for the company. The money and interest was used up in 1957 so the insurers pay from their money.

GOINGS ON

"Exploring Lands Down Under," a program of movies and lecture by John M. Goddard, explorer, will be presented at Lakewood High School Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Long Beach Second Ward of the Latter-Day Saints Church. Tickets are $1.50.

Members of St. Maria Goretti Parish, 3954 Palo Verde Ave., will hold their annual Hofbrau Night tonight, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The "Accents Quartet," winners of Billboard Magazine's 4-star award for excellence, will appear in concert Sunday at 7:30 p.m., El Dorado Park Community Church, 3655 Norwalk Boulevard. It has been designated "Community Sunday" at the church with a special invitation for visitors to come for worship and then tour the facilities. Leroy Jenkins, evangelist, will conduct revival and healing meetings Wednesday through Saturday, 7:30 p.m., at the Municipal Auditorium. Jenkins emphasizes youth in his ministry. "I'm for the Church of What's Happening Now," he says.

Youth to testify for Jesus here

Jesus people are coming to town today.

The Christian Activist young people from all over Southern California, announced that they plan to establish a beachhead on the Long Beach beach, where they will witness for Christ.

With their musical group will be the Accents, a quartet which stands high in the Gospel music scene.

The Accents received the Billboard four-star award for their first album, "New Dimensions in Sacred Sound" (Supreme). The young men are Rusty Peavy, Dave Peter II, Rob Cull and Eddie Chavez. The Activists plan a mass Jesus rally at the First Assembly of God, Church at 7 o'clock tonight.

Truth made her free.

An understanding of God, Truth, freed an Indiana woman from an infected lung and arthritis. It changed her whole life.

But this is not why she came to Christian Science in the first place. It was her hunger for an understanding of God.

If you are searching for the joyous freedom that comes from knowing God's presence in your life, come to our service this Wednesday evening. You will hear people like yourself testify to the power of God, Truth, in their own experience.

Congress likely to pass tough, new water pollute laws

By GIL BAILEY
Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — Tough, new federal water pollution legislation, as revolutionary as the "Clean Air Act Amendments of 1970," seems certain of passage by Congress this year.

Both the House and Senate are now developing such legislation with the Senate far ahead in the race to introduce a bill, except for a current brawl between Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, and John Tunney, D-Calif.

The brawl, however, appears to be more over semantics than realities.

The following features appear already established on the Senate side:

—More money for the water pollution fight: $3 billion a year in federal funds for the next five years with the federal government picking up 75 per cent of the tab for water pollution control facilities when the states pick up 15 per cent;

—Minimum federal water pollution standards with the states able to set stricter standards;

—Revision of the current federal permit system for industrial polluters with additional provisions for states to handle the system, when they can and will do the job;

—Regulation of ocean dumping.

The final draft of the bill is now being prepared by a Muskie-headed subcommittee.

Tunney has introduced an amendment which has currently led to charges that Muskie is attempting to weaken the legislation.

The Tunney amendment calls for all U.S. rivers to be fit for swimming by 1976 and for marine and fish life to be protected. Exceptions until 1980-81 are provided for in the amendment.

QUESTIONS were raised concerning "non-point" water pollution sources — water pollution which does not come out of pipes, such as that off a farmer's field or feed lot, or from the miles on miles of asphalt which make up Los Angeles' freeway system.

In addition there is some question as to whether the amendment is meaningful. Success of the water pollution control program depends on money and the public works it produces, not on words.

More important to California, for example, is the question of the current permit system.

AT PRESENT the federal government is requiring a permit from every industrial discharger. Under the current system the flow chart for handling the permits is six feet long and each permit, which goes through six federal agencies alone, stops at 70 desks, according to Senate staff members.

California has claimed that the federal permit system duplicates state efforts and will cost the state $7,000,000 a year in processing costs without halting pollution.

Senate staff members are sympathetic, but are waiting for announcement of the Nixon administration position. President Nixon imposed the permit system by executive order earlier this year, using the old 1899 Refuse Act.

"A FEDERAL permit system is needed in states which do not have effective controls," a staff member said. "California, Texas and New York do have effective systems and we hope that greater state participation will be included in the bill."

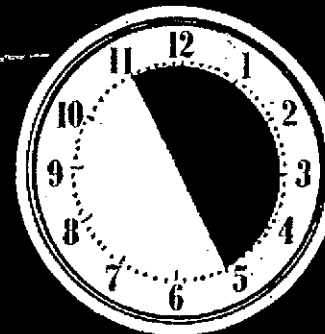

In addition, the proposed bill would allow citizen suits against polluters and against governmental agencies when they don't act to end pollution.

In some respects the Senate bill is modeled after the "Clean Air Act Amendments of 1970," which established firm federal control over air pollution, forcing states to implement air pollution control programs.

In addition, the spending rate would be three times the current funding figure for water pollution — $3 billion per year instead of $1 billion.

THE SENATE bill will be a bipartisan one, drawing support from both Democrats and Republicans. It's the result of a series of congressional hearings in 1970 and 1971.

CLETE BOYER POSTS BAIL IN PORTLAND

PORTLAND (U) — Clete Boyer, former major league infielder, posted $53 bail Friday after his early morning arrest by Portland police on a charge of disorderly conduct by profanity.

Boyer, who left the Atlanta Braves following a dispute with Vice-President Paul Richards, is a third baseman for the Hawaii Islanders.

Police said they were called to a downtown Portland hotel regarding a fight. When they began interviewing the people involved, officers said Boyer began "interfering with the interview."

Boyer when contacted at his hotel declined comment on the alleged incident leading up to his arrest.

Starr faces arm surgery, sidelined at least 12 weeks

GREEN BAY, Wis. (U) — Surgeons will replace part of a tendon in Green Bay Packers quarterback Bart Starr's aching throwing arm, the National Football League team said Friday.

He is to report to the Mayo Clinic Tuesday and the surgery is to be performed Wednesday morning.

Starr, the most accurate passer in pro football, will be out about three months, missing the first four games of the regular season, said coach Dan Devine.

"The surgery will be a biceps tendon transplant," said a statement released by Devine and team physician Dr. James W. Neilen, "which will hopefully avoid the inflammation which has been plaguing him for the last two to three years."

"The recuperation period is approximated at 12 weeks maximum," the statement said, "and it will be 12 weeks until Bart is able to throw with full authority once again."

"We'll know more after the surgery," said Devine, "but knowing Bart, he'll be back in the minimum amount of time."

Starr, 37, joined the Packers in 1956 as a 17th round draft choice. He became the regular quarterback in 1960 and gained All-Pro honors while leading the team to four world championships.

With Starr gone, Devine, a rookie coach, has three quarterbacks in camp; Zeke Bratkowski, 39, a 14-year veteran who was the Packers' ace relief man during their championship years, and is trying a comeback after two years as an assistant coach; Frank Patrick, a sophomore tight end converted to quarterback — a position he played in college — during the players strike last summer, and Scott Hunter, a sixth round draft choice from Alabama.

The need for Starr's operation came after three frustrating seasons during which he sat out a total of 71 quarters with various injuries, including arm and shoulder problems.

Leahy continues to make progress

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Former Notre Dame football coach Frank Leahy, who piloted the Fighting Irish to four national titles in 11 years, is reported making progress from his recent surgery.

A hospital spokesman said that the 62-year-old Leahy, who was listed in critical condition last week, was "still listed as serious, but he's out of intensive care and his condition continues to improve."

Bears shut out All-Stars, 21-0

RENSSELAER, Ind. (UPI)—Defensive back John Davis returned a pass interception 104 yards for a touchdown and linebacker Jimmy Gunn ran 73 yards on another touchdown interception return Friday to lead the Chicago Bears to a 21-0 victory over the 1971 College All-Stars.

It was a charity game for the family of the late Brian Piccolo, a former Bear halfback.

Each team ran 45 plays in the controlled scrimmage and the only touchdown from scrimmage came on a 36-yard pass from Bobby Douglass to George Farmer. Mac Percival converted after all three Bears' scores.

Both of the touchdown interceptions by the Bears came on passes thrown by Chuck Hixson, who reported to the All-Star camp a week late.

Jim Plunkett of Stanford played quarterback most of the way for the collegiates and completed 9 of 14 passes for 85 yards with one interception. Douglass shared the quarterbacking job for the Bears with Jack Concannon.

Neither team displayed a strong running game and the All-Stars rushed for 44 yards compared to 46 for the Bears. The Bears had 68 yards passing and the All-Stars 101 while each team intercepted three passes.

Crawford's best night wasted, 5-3

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Dodger manager Walter Alston and platoon baseball are like bat and ball or Dick and Liz.

You don't say one without saying the other.

So, when Alston penciled Willie Crawford's name into Friday night's lineup, it meant, heaven forbid, he'd have a lefthanded batter against a lefthanded pitcher when he could have gone to any number of righthanded batters instead.

However, Alston, noting the Dodgers' less than splendid success against lefthanders this season, figured it wouldn't make a heckuva lot of difference who he used.

Crawford responded with his finest night ever as a Dodger and now Alston is studying his book on platooning to find another loophole or two.

Willie C., the disappointment of the spring but the bloom of the summer, slugged a homer, double and two singles and his average soared to .318.

It failed to inspire his teammates, though, who absorbed their 13th loss in their last 17 games, a 5-3 setback to the Atlanta Braves before 21,705 Dodger Stadium fans.

The Dodgers didn't lose any ground to first place San Francisco in the National League West. But while they've done little more than watch the Giants increase their lead the last two weeks, there is another challenge from behind.

The loss left the O'Malleys a mere 1½ jumps in front of the Braves and Houston Astros and the Dodgers' six-week hold on the runner-up spot is in jeopardy.

"We're playing the best we have all season," announced Atlanta skipper Luman Harris. "The pitching is the thing that's making the difference."

George Stone scattered nine hits to earn his fourth win in seven decisions and his second triumph in less than a week over the Dodgers. He blanked the Dodgers last Saturday in Atlanta, an embarrassing 10-0 shellacking, and he shut them out for six innings Friday evening.

But Crawford, used exclusively against right-handed pitching all season, homered off of Stone, a lefthander, in the seventh. Rich Allen doubled in a run in the eighth and pinch-hitter Manny Mota singled home the Dodgers' third run in the ninth.

It failed to overcome two home runs by rookie catcher Earl Williams, though, and Bill Singer sank to his 12th loss of the year.

It was Singer's second start since pulling a groin muscle in mid-June and, while he surrendered the two homers to Williams, Alston said Bullet Bill pitched better than he did last Sunday in Pittsburgh when he gave up three runs in five innings.

"It's about all we can expect," Alston said of Singer who's now a disappointing 5-12. "It's like spring training all over again for him. But he did have better stuff tonight than he did against the Pirates."

Williams' two home runs, his 16th and 17th of the season, propelled the Braves into a 3-0 advantage. The Baby Bull, Orlando Cepeda, back in the lineup after missing nearly a month because of a gimpy knee, singled in the fourth run in the fifth.

Crawford, who'd already singled twice, then socked his sixth home run of the season to lead off the seventh.

Felix Millan singled home Marty Perez to score the Braves' fifth run off of Joe Moeller in the eighth.

The Dodgers then attempted a comeback bid in the eighth and ninth innings, both times having to settle for just one run.

In the eighth Maury Wills led off with a single and, after Bill Buckner and Willie Davis grounded out, Allen doubled him home. But Wes Parker grounded out to strand Allen.

In the final inning Crawford got his fourth hit, a double to left. Joe Ferguson flied out but Mota got a pinch single to score him and cut the deficit to two runs. Relief ace Cecil Upshaw replaced Stone and got pinch-hitter Jim LeFebvre to foul out and Wills to ground out and end it.

It's Crawford's first four-hit game in the majors but he's more interested in his current streak. He's had seven hits his last eight at bats, a surge that didn't go unnoticed by Alston.

"Normally Willie wouldn't have played," acknowledged Alston, "but he's had pretty good success against lefthanders when he has played."

Buffalo lands Walt Hazzard

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Braves Friday traded veterans Don May and Herm Gilliam to the Atlanta Hawks for the flashy guard Walt Hazzard and Jerry Chambers.

May, a 6-4 forward, averaged 20.2 points for Buffalo during the 1970-71 NBA season. He came to the Braves from the New York Knicks in the NBA expansion draft.

Hazzard, 28, from UCLA; averaged 18.4 points for the Hawks last year. The 6-3 guard also led the Hawks in assists. Chambers, 6-5 from Utah, hit for 8.9 points per game last year at Atlanta.

LEAPIN' LEON WARMS UP FOR COLLEGE ALL-STARS

All-star back Leon Burns (38) tries to hurdle fallen teammates during scrimmage Friday with Chicago Bears at St. Joseph's College in Rensselaer, Ind. Other All-Stars are tackle John Mooring (71) who is blocking Bears' Ross Brupbacher, Dan Dierdorf (72) and Elmo Wright (23). Bears won scrimmage, 21-0.

Palmer stretches Westchester lead

HARRISON, N.Y. (U) — Arnold Palmer stretched his lead to two strokes Friday in the second round of the Westchester Golf Classic while travel-weary Lee Trevino packed his bags and went fishing.

Trevino, who swept the U.S., Canadian and British Open championships in a four-week stretch, took an eight on the finishing hole for a 75 and announced:

"I'm just weary. I'm going fishing."

Trevino, who had a 146 total, didn't wait around to see if he would miss the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday but left the clubhouse immediately for an undisclosed destination.

Palmer, who had an opening 64, shipped to a 10-under-par 70 for a 134-10 under par on the 6,700-yard Westchester Country Club course.

None of his pursuers could take advantage, however, and only Bob Smith, a non-winning tour regular from Sacramento, could stay within two strokes.

Smith, who missed the cut his last two starts, took a second consecutive 68 for a 135.

A group of three — led by Gibby Gilbert — were tied at 137. Bob Stone, a graying 41-year-old, had a 69 and Larry Wood took a 72 to tie Gilbert. Gilbert, who rejoined the tour a couple of years ago, reeled off a string of six consecutive birdies — the best on the pro tour this season — en route to a 70.

Defending champion Bruce Crampton matched par 72 and was tied at 138 with Frank Beard, 68, and George Bontell, 70.

Jack Nicklaus, bothered by an eye infection, still managed to cut three strokes off par with a 69 for 141 — seven strokes back of the 41-year-old Palmer.

Palmer, winner of two titles and more than $100,000 already this year, had one bogey and only three birdies in the round that kept him on top in the chase for pro golf's richest prize — $50,000 to the winner out of a total purse of $250,000.

"I played pretty good except for the third hole

Billingsley not out for season—yet

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego Chargers coach Sid Gillman declined to confirm whether absent defensive tackle Ron Billingsley was placed on the reserve list Friday as threatened.

"We have taken some action, but we're not going to disclose it," he said. Earlier reports from the camp indicated Billingsley would be placed on reserve if he did not appear by 6 a.m. He did not report.

Gillman had said such action would make Billingsley ineligible to play for anyone this year, but Jim Kensil of the National Football League commissioner's office said Billingsley could play because he has not yet reported.

Billingsley's attorney, Robert Baxley, wrote Gillman earlier this week that he was considering antitrust action. Billingsley has said he will not play for the Chargers as long as Gillman is coach.

Billingsley was the Chargers' first draft choice in 1967. He played college ball at Wyoming University.

HAYES PAYS EXTORTION 'FANS' $200

DALLAS (U) — Wide receiver Bob Hayes says he paid $200 to keep an extortionist from kidnapping his daughter and bombing the homes of Dallas Cowboy coach Tom Landry and club president Tex Schramm.

"These people told me they were going to bomb Tom's house, and if that didn't work they'd put a bomb in his car. They also said they'd bomb club president Tex Schramm's house," Hayes said.

Hayes said the telephone threat came last October.

"They said they were Cowboy football fans and were going to get even for Tom putting me on the bench," Hayes said. "I told them that was ridiculous over a contract, over a game."

Lefty, pass the aspirin

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BALTIMORE — Lefty Phillips reported to work Friday evening nursing what athletes refer to as a "bad boiler."

Translated, this means Phillips was suffering an upset stomach.

Baltimore's ninth-inning behavior did nothing to soothe Lefty's digestive tract.

Without benefit of a clean base hit, they produced the run which enabled them to bedevil the Angels, 4-3, and caused Phillips to reach for the aspirin bottle.

"We did a good job of losing up that inning," the manager wailed in a fit of pique. "We started with the first ball they hit and kept going until we blew it," he added fretfully.

It used to be Yankee Stadium which was the house of horrors for the Angels. Now Memorial Stadium can be regarded as the chief claimant to that title. The Angels are 0-4 here this season.

Rudy May, given 2-0 and 3-2 leads, wound up losing his sixth game when pinch-hitter Elrod Hendricks, with only two hits in 22 previous swings against Angel pitching, bounced a hopping single over the drawn-in Jim Spencer at first base to score Merv Rettenmund with the decisive run.

The winner was Pat Dobson, the eccentric right-hander who has forgotten how to lose. Dobson won his 10th in a row and turned in his seventh successive complete game by fashioning a seven-hitter after a rocky beginning.

Dobson is 13-4 for the year and 3-0 against the Angels yet he is in peril of coming out early as the Angels mustered seven hits and three runs in their

Quarry hopes rematch better tonight on TV

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (UPI) — Heavyweight Jerry Quarry, ranked fourth by the World Boxing Association, meets Tony Doyle in a rematch tonight at the Playboy Hotel.

The two met previously, Nov. 11, 1965, and fought a draw. Since then Quarry has lost three of five fights to Jimmy Ellis, Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali. Doyle, has not met any top fighters in that span and his career has been halted several times by losses to mediocre fighters.

Doyle has lost seven of 39 bouts and drawn only once—against Quarry. Quarry has won 36, lost five and had four draws. The fight will be nationally televised.

Coaching in NFL: seven-day, three-night week required

MANKATO, Minn. — The Minnesota Vikings might think coach Bud Grant schedules Saturday morning practices during the National Football League season so he can hunt in the afternoon.

But even if Grant does pursue his love for the outdoors the afternoon before a game, he has a reason — just as in all of his calculations, some formulated with the help of a computer.

"It's a six-day week for the players," said Grant. "It's seven days and three nights for the coaches. The only occasion that we get a chance to take any time off during the day is Saturday before a home game."

"The players accuse me of practicing in the morning so I can go hunting in the afternoon. I haven't denied it. Really, why I do it is if they had nothing to do on Saturday morning, they would probably sleep in."

"Then comes Saturday night when we want them to go to bed at 10 or 11 o'clock and they're not tired."

Grant, now in Mankato to prepare the Vikings for the 1971 season, gave a rundown on what a week with him is like during the regular season. Just when one game ends on Sunday, the next one begins.

"It's not a lockup operation," he said. "We go home for supper."

But this year Grant will miss his Monday night dinner to tape a weekly television show.

MONDAY
The players are off but Grant and his staff report at 8:30 a.m. to look at Sunday's game film for two hours.

"After we've digested that we go into the film work for the next Sunday. We'll break down the last two games of the opposition — the defense on computers and the offense on what we call takeoff cards. That will go on until 10 or 11 o'clock at night."

The computers, fed with statistics, are used to recall offensive plays with a numbering system. The takeoff cards, simply, are play diagrams.

TUESDAY
"I'll have some comments to make to the squad about our previous game in general. Or on our plans for the week, announcements, general information or discussion of one phase or another of the game."

The players take a look at their last game and then go through a light loosening up practice. The coaches head for more homework later.

"The compiling is probably done by then," said Grant.

"Now it's deciding how you're going to attack this defense or stop that offense. We stay until we come up with something. Then we sleep on it."

WEDNESDAY
"We finalize it and print it to the extent that we present it to the players at practice. We'll go out and go over some things we're going to do."

THURSDAY-FRIDAY
"These are the big practice days. We'll have it cold and down and be working hard at it. We'll show them why we're doing this or why we're doing that; how we're doing this, how we arrived at that and sell them on what we're doing."

SATURDAY
The Vikings hold their morning workout and if they're on the road take a chartered jet to the city of the opposing team.

"We eat, go to bed, get up and play the game."

SUNDAY
"From the time we wake up," Grant said, "it's a mental preparation — a quick review, a short meeting, a pregame meal, taping. It's a little routine to stay halfway busy instead of just sitting."

Here, Grant's refined planning on even the smallest details is evident.

"We're probably the latest team arriving at the stadium. We don't feel we want to spend any more time in the locker room than we have to."

"Say the game is at 1:30, we get there exactly at 12:30, go on the field at 1, off at 1:20. The minutes to go in and adjust a pad or something is just enough time to turn around and get right back on the field again."

THE VIKINGS play the game, and the process starts all over again.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Magnolia grandiflora, the Southern Magnolia with fragrant white blooms burgeoning forth in late spring is a desirable tree for shade and landscape beauty.

The newer introduction Magnolia grandiflora, "Majestic Beauty" (grafted trees) are showy pyramidal form with cup-shaped fragrant white flowers in the summer. They are beautiful in landscape plantings, and for patios.

Though they stand cold weather — 10 degrees down to zero — they're happier growing in milder sectors where there is some humidity, and not dry heat like the desert sections.

Among a number, there are two sure-fire trees for desert sections, Jerusalem thorn, and Texas umbrella.

Magnolia trees are slower growing than other kinds. Trees of any type that grow in lawns still need additional deep waterings except during the winter, to force the roots to grow deeper.

THE FOLLOWING provoking tree thoughts are timely and bear repeating. "Natures Air Conditioners" appeared in Tropical Living periodical in the past, by Alice F. Smart of Leesburg, Florida. (Save this reprint):

"Creeping Treelessness" is a blight to our nation! Many builders, in their hurry to build more houses more quickly, are bulldozing out trees rather than take time to grade around them or build the lot up to a certain grade. The federal highway program denudes millions of acres of land of all vegetation, yet makes no provision that the roadsides be replanted or landscaped, despite the fact that it has been proven that a planting along roadsides or in the center safety zones makes roads safer and more scenic.

"In rapid-growing areas, city and state government park departments are not providing sufficient street plantings of trees, or securing sufficient parks which can be planted with trees and shrubs to offset those being lost. Trees do not grow overnight and the present tendency to wanton destruction of these resources must be reversed. Many millions of young trees must be planted in populated areas if much of the nation is not to be downgraded into vast, sterile slums.

"THE ANSWER lies in more widespread education of the public — the home-owners, the business owners, the industrial plant officials, and public officials. When they know the tremendous value of trees and shrub plantings, then they will demand them. Builders of homes can insist that existing trees be left, or if they cannot, then others be planted. Cities and states should include tree planting in their budget. In DeLand, Florida, the city has an ideal program of tree planting. Well known for their beautiful trees, the city plants at least one tree for every one that must be removed in the expansion program.

"Parking lots are important in most of our cities — yet few cities plant trees around them or provide any shade. These lots need the air-conditioning of trees, for the paving reflects heat and you cannot sit in your car comfortably.

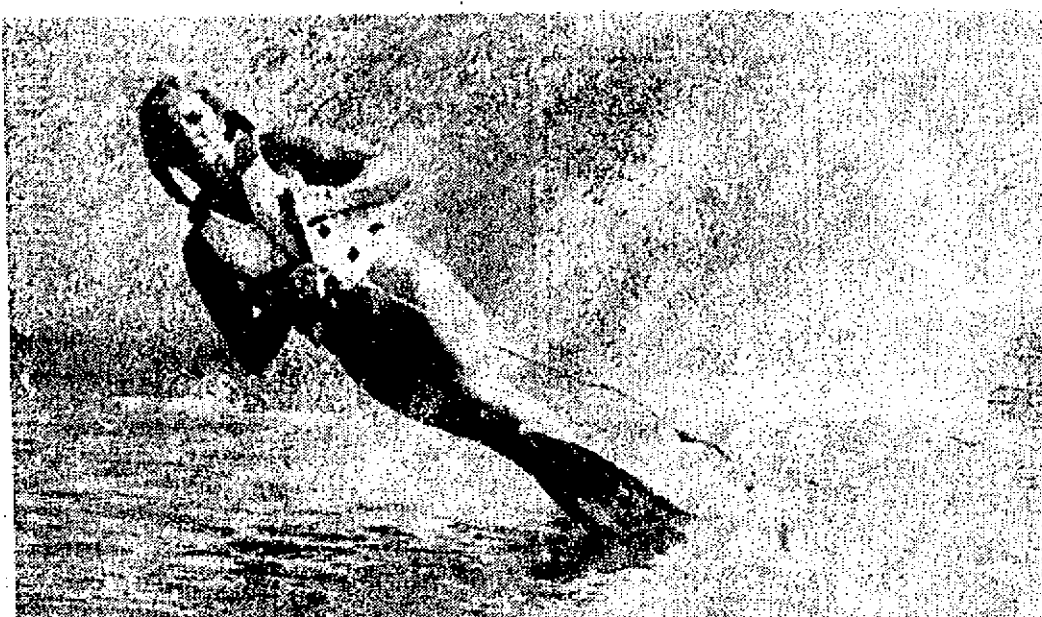

THE MAGNIFICENT MAGNOLIA

"Business and industrial firms must insist that their architects allow room for trees, shrubs and lawns. They are valuable for beauty, for comfort, for air conditioning and employee enjoyment.

"CLIMATE CONTROL seems an important goal in this space age, yet it is nothing new. In his plan of creation, God included growing plants — the garden, if you please — for climate control.

"There is perhaps reason for the smogs; most cities have completely destroyed the trees, and there is so little space for growing of any plants. Concrete pavements and walks combine to crowd out nature's air conditioners. By surrounding ourselves with plant life, we not only breathe purer air, but air condition our homes. Plantings of trees and shrubs, properly located, can make the home warmer in the winter and cooler in the summer — often as much as 15 or 20 degrees.

"A distinguished American Scientist recently warned that lack of trees to convert harmful carbon dioxide into healthful oxygen can cause untold damage to this nation by disturbing the balance of these gases in the atmosphere."

Manning signs for estimated $400,000

Combined News Services

Archie Manning signed an estimated $400,000 contract with the New Orleans Saints, it was announced Friday.

Although terms were not revealed, Manning's contract was estimated to be a four or five-year package. Saints owner John Mecom Jr. announced the signing of their No. 1 draft choice after a four-and-a-half hour bargaining session.

"Archie finally is a Saint, a real Saint," said Mecom. "I'm certainly glad all this is over."

Pressed on the details of the agreement, Mecom said only that it was a multi-term contract agreeable "both to Manning and the Saints."

"I'm not trying to be evasive but it's been a long three or four months," Mecom said at the conclusion of the negotiations.

The Dallas Cowboys traded away linebacker Steve Kiner, who reportedly had sided with running back Duane Thomas in his feud with Dallas officials.

Kiner, a two-time all-America at Tennessee, was sent to the New England Patriots for a high 1972 draft choice.

"We expect him to move right into a starting job," said Patriots' general manager Upton Bell after the trade. "We need help at linebacker and we figure he's the player we needed."

Truckers play pair tonight

Two of softball's hardest throwing pitchers, Ed Klecker of Lakewood's V. B. Morgan Truckers and K. G. Fincher of Santee, could meet tonight at Mayfair Park when their teams play a doubleheader at 7:15 p.m.

Santee has won eight games in a row and trailed the Long Beach Nitehawks by one-half game in the torrid Western Softball Congress race prior to the Hawks' twin bill Friday night against San Bernardino.

Lakewood, with a 16-10 mark, is in third place behind Santee's 17-8 record. Santee beat Lakewood, 2-0 and 1-0, on its home field earlier this season.

Fincher, twice the winning pitcher in a national title game for Gardena, will hurl both games.

Ryun confirms he's aiming for Olympics in '72

TOPEKA, Kan. — Kansas Jim Ryun, making a sound move within four months in hopes of finding a better training climate at Santa Barbara, confirmed Friday he is aiming for the 1972 Olympic Games at Munich.

The world record holder in the mile and a half-mile began a comeback last winter after nearly two years absence from competition due to personal circumstances and what he called mental fatigue from running so much since his early teens.

His comeback began in sub-four minute miles. But it faltered when he was hit with hay fever. He recently cut short a European tour after several disappointing races which he blamed on the allergy.

Golf site announced

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The fifth Andy Williams tournament will be played Jan. 25-30 at Torrey Pines Golf Course.

Rauch raps owner for final trade

BUFFALO — Former Buffalo Bills coach John Rauch disclosed that the trade that led to his sudden resignation was made by Ralph Wilson, owner of the National Football League team.

Rauch quit Tuesday after Wilson told him he was about to refute statements the coach had made criticizing former Bills player Ron McDole. McDole, a veteran defensive end, was traded to the Washington Redskins for three draft choices.

"Washington offered three players, and I told Ralph all three together weren't worth one Ron McDole," Rauch said in an interview with the Buffalo Courier-Express. "So Ralph suggested getting draft choices. I told him they wouldn't help me, but the next thing I knew, the trade was made."

Rauch said in a television interview after the trade that McDole had not played "what, in my standards, is winning football in the last three years."

Falcons' Lothridge quitting football

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Billy Lothridge, the Atlanta Falcons' punter since the team was organized in 1966, announced Friday that he is retiring from football.

He said he has no problems with the Falcons, but that he prefers to be in private business. Lothridge kicked for the Rams in 1965.

Plant Clinic

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Q. — Would you kindly identify the enclosed which seems to grow on top of my dichondra lawn? We have had two instances this spring of an area approximately five inches by five inches on which this growth has appeared.

A. — That orange growth is a parasite that you're likely to see in foothill areas. This growth — Dodder — smothers shrubs and absorbs nourishment from the plants. It is doing the same to your dichondra. Water the areas infested. Apply sulphate of ammonia, three quarters of a cup of it to one gallon of water. Stir when dissolved and pour it over the infested spots. Treatment will damage your lawn, but it will grow back. So far as we know this is about the only remedy.

Q. — We are moving. I want to take my daffodils bulbs with me. I have dug them up and put them in a bucket of rich soil. (No drainage). Where do I go from there? E.B.M.

A. — Take them out of the bucket when the foliage has dried. Remove the foliage, clean off the soil from bulbs base. Roots will come off. Store in a dark dry area. Mid-October plant them in your new garden.

Q. — The enclosed branch specimen vine is the one my Collie likes to eat. It grows wild against a fence. Have no idea where it came from as I only noticed it this year. Mrs. B. Miles.

CLUB NOTES

THE South Coast Orchid Society will meet in the Bixby Park clubhouse, 130 Cherry Ave., on Monday. A slide program on orchids will be presented. The public is welcome.

THE Floral Art Group, a division of the Los Angeles Garden Club, will present "Flowers at Home" Aug. 4 at 10:15 a.m. at 540 So. California St., in Los Angeles.

Fertilizer burn

Reason gardeners can fertilize burn their grass or dichondra lawn primarily is due to applying the fertilizer on damp foliage. The lawn soil should contain ample moisture supply, but the foliage must be dry before feeding. The lawn should also be additionally watered with strong sharp water force by a hose after the lawn had being well watered by sprinklers. The watering washes off any remaining fertilizer pellets down to the lawn turf.

Dig up, divide four or five year old bearded iris clumps. Separate the young rhizomes from the old and replant the young ones.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Finds you entering into a new spiritual growth, with an existing of material phenomena as you progress. This promises to be one of the sunniest, simplest years of your life, with some vivid memories that will go with you always. Today's natives often have a capacity for leadership based on an ability to see through complexities of social order, politics.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Show up bright and early in your community expression of faith. Never mind if some of your ideas are tilted and modified--there are more where these came from.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Follow the line of fast resistance; just drift along and let other people supply the ideas and energies. Their moods tend to be abrasive, under stress--seek rivalry, detachment.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): There seems no clear direction in which to go. Does it really matter that Sunday is exceptional from organized gravity? Relax and be serene.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Placidly, following well-worn habits, weekend customs gives you time and space for digestion of recent experience. Catch up with correspondence and household accounts.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 22): Romance beckons from unlikely angles. This Sunday and as yet from solitary pursuits, there is little else that seems pressing to consider. Reflect on your circumstances, count your blessings.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Curiously, persistently explored may make this one of the most interesting, lively Sundays of recent times, with slight costs.

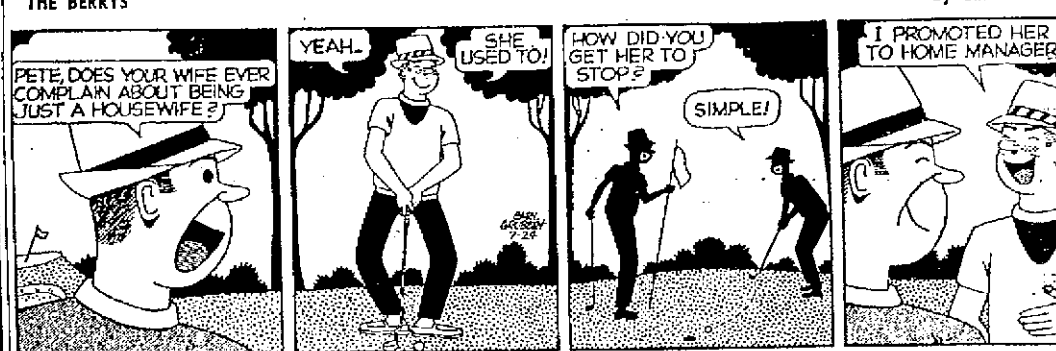

- Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Free speech being heard, you have to speak at considerable length to get your point of view accepted. Details cannot be stored over, although it is difficult to get into specifics without risking the direction of your discourse.
- Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Leave the past behind and go forward vigorously into the future with those who have definite goals in progress. Your community needs your help.
- Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Survival is the reward for any effort at semi-independence. Competitive sports and games according to your personal limits can be exciting; reach technical, race marks.
- Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Forcing decisions, pushing for quick reactions should spoil your Sunday. Strike a happy balance, keep peace among the people around you.
- Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This Sunday begins simply enough but is apt to become active, lively as first one contemplates then another requires your close attention.
- Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep your own counsel--what you take for granted is more or less unknown or confidential to other people. You get further working alone.

A high rating for 'Carnival'

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

Briskly paced, raucous, jazzy and often very funny, Long Beach City College's first summer theater offering, "A Thurbur Carnival," breathes new life into the old master's comic writings.

James Thurbur, newsman, cartoonist, writer and playwright, assembled this "Carnival" a year before his death in 1961. Its components are bits and pieces of his humorous writings through the years, many of which appeared in the old, Harold Ross-edited "New Yorker" magazine.

ALTHOUGH AN accomplished writer of drama, Thurbur really didn't leave us a play in this, his near-final work. Rather it's more a revue, complete with blackouts, monologues deriving from short stories, dramatized fables, one-line throwaway gags.

And, to me the production's finest moment, a three-part excerpt from Thurbur's greatest yarn, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty."

In an episode near the finale, a talented young man named Donald Marcy is seen putting to the grocery with his domineering wife. He is the henpecked Walter Mitty, who, through the power of his own imagination, is about to disappear into his private world and become:

(1) A gallant naval pilot flying through the worst storm in 20 years to destroy the enemy's North Atlantic Fleet; (2) a great, miracle-working surgeon, the envy and despair of his colleagues; and (3), a gallant spy facing a firing squad, insouciant to the end.

THURBUR ORIGINALLY took Walt through several other such transformations, but these three views satisfyingly give us the full flavor of the author's insights into the private life of Everyman.

An excellent combo belting out pre-Progressive jazz enlivens the action. And the cast is fast with foot and tongue, vividly recreating without a hint of camp, the vanished world of James Thurbur.

Director James E. de Priest and a large staff of student assistants deserve much credit for producing a summerweight evening's entertainment.

Three stars; high school age and up.

Previn fails Bowl crowd

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

The crowds are large — though they could be larger —, the sound system is working splendidly, and the Los Angeles Philharmonic is in fine form. Three weeks into its 50th summer season, Hollywood Bowl is alive and well.

But the difference between living and thriving, at the Bowl as well as at any other orchestral series, summer or winter, is still the man who stands on the podium. Andre Previn, the conductor in charge of this week's Bowl programs, certainly moves a lot, and, in so doing, gives the Calhoun Pass music lovers something interesting to watch at all times. And he leaves the Philharmonic to its own exultantly professional devices a great deal of the time.

UNDER his mediocre leadership, however, very little thriving occurs. Thursday's concert, when Gary Graffman played the Third Piano Concerto of Prokofiev, and Previn led the "Classical" Symphony and Strauss' "Also Sprach Zarathustra," was ordinary. Neat and correct, but ordinary.

Not so much the Concerto, wherein Graffman achieved some of the clearest, most mordant playing of the work we have heard, and Previn was disposed, since he obviously shared the reins, to go along with a tight, projected, and witty reading.

IN AN age of articulate and resourceful pianists, Graffman maintains his position among the front-runners. His enunciated fingers, his sovereign musicianship, and his technical superiority, serve the music he plays with an elegant combination of virtues. Not all of Graffman's previous local appearances have met this standard, but this one re-established his eminence in the field, unquestionably.

Previn's conducting remains inconsistent. Yes, he mimes well, and sometimes even seems to lead, though not often. There were rhythmic flabbiness.

es in the "Classical" Symphony, as well as notably weak cohesion, and the dramatic moments of "Zarathustra," not to mention its more serene places, were neither compelling nor convincing. The performance went along, at least, but merely going along is hardly what one expects in this international showplace.

I, P-T SPONSORED STARLIGHT SERENADES

Bring back the nostalgia of yesteryear... a soft summer breeze... music floating on the air... picnic suppers under the stars... concerts in the park.

The "Starlight Serenades" are back for the 11th season. Co-sponsored by the Independent, Press-Telegram and the Long Beach Symphony Association, this free-admission, three-concert series will be held at the Band Pavilion of Recreation Park (located at the corner of 7th Street and Park Avenue) on Tuesday evenings August 3, 17, and 31, at 8 p.m. Bring your picnic supper; come early and get a good seat.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 3, will feature John Palacios, associate conductor of the Long Beach Symphony with favorite symphonic works of Rossini, Handel, Aaron Copland, and Stravinsky during the first half of the program. The second half of the program will feature TV and film scores with such favorites as Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story," Nino Rota's suite from "Romeo and Juliet," Elmer Bernstein's suite from "Magnificent Seven," and selections from Burt Bacharach, Lolo Schiffrin and Jim Webb.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 17, will be a complete staging of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," sung in Italian and directed by Pacific Opera Theatre's music director John Dare.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 31, will feature a return engagement of the popular Lola Montes Dancers in an all-Spanish night. Albert Bolet, permanent conductor of the Long Beach Symphony, will be returning from his summer orchestra conducting tour in Spain and Wales for this final concert in the "Starlight Serenades" series.

Old favorites in new series

By TERRY VERNON

Dick Van Dyke, Don Adams, Hope Lange, Roger Moore and Larry Hagman will be among the former favorites returning with new series on your Saturday screen.

And regulars Leonard Nimoy, Lesley Warren and Don Grady will be missing from their returning shows.

"My Three Sons" opens the Saturday schedule for CBS, at 8 p.m., with Don Grady's role written out at his request. He'll be "on assignment" in Peru, but his wife and triplet sons will be regulars.

Sandy Duncan, who has one, stars in the 8:30 p.m. "Funny Face."

Sandy, famed for her commercials for United California Bank, will play a Midwest girl attending UCLA, and earning her tuition and expenses by acting in television commercials. Kathleen Freeman and Henry Beckman play her landlord and his wife.

Emmy-winners Dick Van Dyke and Hope Lange are up next on CBS, in a comedy series focusing on the public and private life of a television talk-show host in Phoenix. Marty Brill, Fannie Flagg and Nancy Dussault are featured regulars.

Van Dyke's former TV wife follows at 9:30 p.m.

with the same successful format for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." Nancy Walker will make a return appearance as Rhoda Morgenstern's mother.

"Mission: Impossible," in a new day and time, winds up the Saturday schedule for CBS. The departing Leonard Nimoy will not be replaced, but Lynda Day George, wife of Christopher George, will play the female member of the IMF team, now in its sixth season.

Miss George, a regular on ABC's short-lived "Silent Force," replaces Lesley Warren who in turn replaced Barbara Bain.

A PAIR OF half-hour comedies will precede NBC's Saturday Night Movies.

Don Adams and Rupert Crosse are "The Partners," paired as squad car police detectives with all the ineptness of "Get Smart." Arne Sultan, who teamed with Adams in the Maxwell Smart series, is producer.

"The Good Life," a kind of urban "Green Acres," stars Larry Hagman ("I Dream of Jeannie") with Donna Mills, David Wayne, Hermione Baddeley and Danny Goldman.

Seen originally as part of a "World Premiere: Triple Play," story deals with a materially successful young couple who sell their home and live "the good life" by hiring themselves out as a butler and cook, however inexperienced, to a wealthy, eccentric, much-married man, and his scheming sister.

BOBBY SHERMAN stars as a budding songwriter in "Getting Together," the 8 p.m. entry for ABC.

Wes Stern co-stars as a lyricist, with Pat Carroll as their landlady and Susan Neher of the defunct "To Rome with Love" as Sherman's kid sister.

Following, Bobby at 8:30 p.m. will be "Movie of the Weekend," an extension of the network's highly-praised Tuesday series, but with the accent on suspense stories.

"The Persuaders," which wraps up the ABC night, stars Tony Curtis in his first regular series, with Roger Moore.

An action-adventure series laced with humor, the hours have been filmed in France, Italy and Spain.

Moore plays an English lord, Curtis a self-made millionaire from the Bronx, and the two share a spirit of adventure — and going after the baddies who have somehow eluded the law.

Panther 'informer' tells of attempt to blast police station

United Press International

A Black Panther who turned informer against the party Friday described how he and three other militants crawled through the Los Angeles sewer system in an attempt to blow up a police station.

Melvin Carl Smith, 42, who was granted immunity in return for his testimony, led off the state witnesses at the trial of 13 Panthers on charges ranging from possession of illegal weapons to conspiracy to murder police officers.

SMITH, who was nervous under the glare of the defendants, was in Panther headquarters shooting at officers on Dec. 8, 1969, when police staged a raid that led to a three-hour gun battle.

The thin, mustachioed witness said the month before the shootout he went with former Deputy Defense Minister Elmer Pratt and two other Panthers on a mission to place explosives beneath the 77th Street station house.

THEY ALL wore gas masks because of the stench, Smith said, and entered the underground tunnels some distance from the station carrying explosives, shotguns, knives and hacksaws to cut through any bars.

No explosion ever occurred at the station. Smith's testimony was interrupted by presentation of exhibits before he explained why there was no explosion.

The defense contends the Panthers were only attempting to defend themselves against extinction when they opened fire on the police from their headquarters.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ronald Carroll brought out that "off the pigs" ("kill the police") was a slogan of the Panthers that he heard every day.

Smith said he attended "military classes" where Pratt taught how most effectively to stab a victim in the stomach and the back. The witness stood before the jury and demonstrated with a police sergeant how Pratt instructed that you could kill by placing a pencil beneath the ear and shoving it into the brain.

"THE PENCIL method was mostly for the women," Smith said.

"Who were the persons intended as victims?" Carroll asked.

"The police, naturally," Smith replied.

Smith said he taught classes in how to make bombs with a mixture of saltwater and granulated sugar.

Smith said he also attended "political education" classes with the defendants at which the "revolutionary goals" of the party were explained.

What's bad for D.C. 'good day for L.A.'

Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — A smog warning was issued here Friday for the second straight day with elderly and those suffering from respiratory complaints told to take it easy.

The warnings, issued over television and through the newspapers, came as oxidant readings, the indicators of Los Angeles-type auto-caused air pollution, reached .10 parts per million parts of air for one hour at two points within metropolitan Washington, D.C.

Such readings are reached 200 or more days a year in the Los Angeles Basin without warnings being issued.

The Washington Post noted, "The most severe smog since last July blanketed the Washington area yesterday (Thursday), prompting the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments to warn the elderly and persons with respiratory problems of possible consequences."

The warning level here is .10 ppm. Warnings for school children are issued in the Los Angeles area when the levels reach .35 ppm.

A similar health-warning system for Southern California has been proposed.

In Washington Thursday and Friday the scene was a familiar one for Californians.

L.A. today - a striking high-rise city

Associated Press

In the last 15 years, high-rise buildings have restyled the skyline of the three largest cities in California, where growth traditionally has been out, not up.

Planners say the skyscraper boom is evidence of a vigorous economy, and necessary for development of modern downtown areas. Some specific projects have received protests from environmentalists, but the pace of building continues.

Perhaps the most striking change has been in the profile of Los Angeles, traditionally the platter city. California's largest city — population nearly 3 million — had a 13-story height limit until 1956. Only the 27-floor spire of city hall soared higher.

Rescinding of the law — aimed at restricting downtown congestion rather than as an earthquake safety measure — has resulted in some two-score high-risers poking into the smog.

ONE of the first was the 32-story Occidental Center tower, in the southern downtown section. Now it's overshadowed by the likes of the 42-story Union Bank Building, the twin Atlantic-Richfield towers at 52 stories, and others. Security Pacific Bank plans a 56-story structure and United California Bank has announced the granddaddy of them all, a 62-story.

High-risers have sprouted elsewhere, in Hollywood, in Century City, at various points along Wilshire Boulevard, and in such populous suburbs as the San Fernando Valley and Orange County.

In San Francisco, the beautiful city by the bay, the famed hills that once were sludded with structures of moderate height now sprout a forest of towers. Many a view has been blocked in the name of progress.

Loudest opposition has come from a dressmaker, Alvin Duskin, who collected some 45,000 signatures on an initiative petition that would ban new skyscrapers without a referendum.

San Francisco's high-risers tend to be "status symbol" type office buildings, akin to those in Los Angeles and San Diego. Among them are the Bank of America buildings, 52 stories; Transamerica at 48; Security Pacific at 46; Wells Fargo, 43; Aetna Life, 38; Union Bank, 37; Pacific Insurance, 33. Hotels, too, are soaring: the Hilton, 46, Hyatt House, 35 and St. Francis Tower, 32.

Former bank prober accused of embezzling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert W. Moore, 35, a former federal bank examiner, was indicted Friday on charges of embezzling $210,000.

A 17-count indictment, handed up by a U.S. district court grand jury, charged Moore with taking the money from the Beacon Savings & Loan Association of Antioch between Nov. 19, 1969, and Feb. 8, 1971.

Moore, a resident of Walnut Creek, was executive vice president and manager of the Antioch branch of the association which was since merged with the Fidelity Savings & Loan Association.

The indictment said the money was taken in amounts ranging from $500 to $40,000. U.S. Attorney James Browning said the money was not taken in cash but in complicated transactions.

QUEEN'S WAY BRIDGE... Draws Favor Of Judges In Annual Competition

L. B. span wins

The nation's 23 most beautiful steel bridges opened in 1970 have been named by the American Institute of Steel Construction from among 127 entries.

Long-span winner: Queen's Way Bridge, Long Beach.

The bridge, designed by M. A. Nishkian & Co., Long Beach consulting engineers, drew such comments from judges as "clean lines, a neat vertical alignment... in this excellently proportioned structure" and "the guard rails, the lighting... have been handled well. This is a fine example of a beautifully designed box girder bridge."

Guy F. Atkinson Company, Long Beach, was substructure contractor; Minasian Associates, Long Beach, structural engineering consultant.

Canyon Lake enters fourth year

As the $45 million private family resort of Canyon Lake celebrated its third anniversary, property owners there marked the event with a record $3 million in new construction initiated since the first of the year.

D. E. Serafini, president of Corona Land Company, developers of the property, said 38 new homes and a $100,000 motel are in the building process, and 35 new homes have been approved by the architectural control committee and will soon be under construction.

Canyon Lake is located in the scenic Perris Valley, 20 miles southeast of Corona in Riverside County.

It has grown from a campground and fishing area into an environmentally controlled community oriented to watersports around a 383-surface-acre lake that is stocked with largemouth bass, blue channel catfish, crappie and bluegill perch.

CONTAINED within the community is the 18-hole Canyon Lake Golf Course, fully matured now; a $550,000 lodge with a swimming pool, tennis courts, dining room, billiards and card room, and a lounge for use of property owners. The lodge is the focal point for recreation.

those who want to swim in the lake.

In addition, there is the Western Saddle Club, with stables, corrals, facilities for boarding or renting horses, a show ring and judges' stand for equestrian events, and riding trails.

"CANYON LAKE has come a long way in three years," said Serafini. "Some 4,000 lots have been sold."

"We have just opened up Treasure Island which has 26 premium condominiums."

NEW YORK (UPI) — America's big port cities could solve some of their more pressing problems by shoving their airports and steamship docks and even their power plants a few miles out in the ocean, says architect Larry Lerner.

That would reduce jet engine noise and diffuse airport traffic. Lerner said such a system also would banish most local objections to centrally located nuclear power plants and, for the first time, would make it possible for giant supertankers to deliver oil directly to such cities as New York and Boston.

Most of the land on which existing facilities like John F. Kennedy Airport and the piers lining the Hudson and East rivers could be converted for recreation or allowed to return to wilderness, Lerner said.

real estate would be sold or put to uses that would help pay for the new offshore complexes."

LERNER'S firm, Saphier, Lerner & Schindler Environmental, Inc., a Litton Industries subsidiary, has just obtained a $400,000 grant from the Federal Aviation Administration to make a feasibility study of offshore airports for the whole country.

The firm got the contract mainly on the basis of a plan Lerner has been working on several years for an airport-shipping-power complex in the ocean five miles off Long Beach, Long Island, N.Y.

The plan envisages a complex of runways, docks and a terminal building constructed in about 80 feet of water and connected to the mainland by a rail and highway causeway.

It would contain parking space for more than 200,000 cars, be connected to the city subway system and be served by ferries and air taxis from all over New York, Connecticut and New Jersey.

"IT'S DESIGNED to handle one million passengers a day by the year 2,000," Lerner said, "but it can be built in stages. Personally I hope we never see that many people traveling by air. I favor rehabilitating our railroads to handle all passenger service of 250 miles or less on air cushion trains powered by linear induction motors moving at 200 miles an hour."

Lerner's ocean complex would consist of a vast concrete hand of up to nine fingers, radiating from the terminal. Each finger would be 1,200 feet wide and from one mile to several miles long. The fingers would be at least a mile apart over most of their length.

THE RUNWAY fingers would be at three different

While some aerospace firms in Southern California are singing the blues, the Systems Division of Atlantic Research is singing "how sweet it is" with employment up 30 per cent since January, new business prospects and forecasts of substantial revenue increases in the future.

Located on a 15-acre site along Harbor Boulevard, north of the San Diego Freeway in Costa Mesa, Atlantic Research is a technology firm staffed with highly qualified engineers and technicians and an extremely capable management team.

R. G. Vande Vrede, vice president and general manager of the firm said "this division's healthy posture is the result of our basic diversification planning and the positive attitudes of our employees who were decided to this plan.

"The plan to diversify from a one product line company was established two years prior to the aerospace depression and gave us a head start on the rest of the industry."

The division's big break came in 1962 when it was selected to be the prime contractor for a significant portion of the Department of Defense Advanced Ballistic Reentry System program.

THIS PROGRAM studies

atmospheric reentry phenomena via solid propellant booster vehicles that carry payloads some 200 miles above the earth and back again at speeds exceeding 22,000 feet per second.

To date, Systems Division has launched more than 125 Athena booster vehicles with a reliability rate in excess of 93 per cent.

Utilizing the systems technology gained from the Athena and other aerospace programs, the division has moved into other fields.

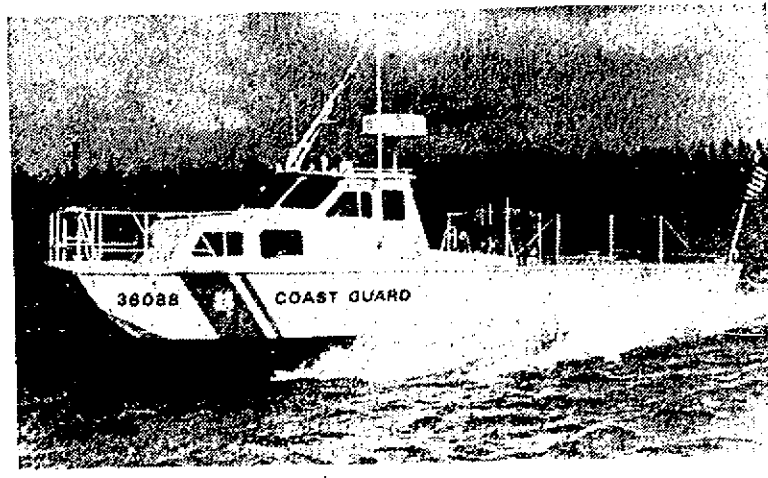

Several inverted and conventional hull fiber-glass and aluminum boats were designed which subsequently led to production contracts from the U.S. Navy for assault and target boats.

Currently, a 42-foot combination fire and harbor police patrol boat is being constructed for the City of San Diego.

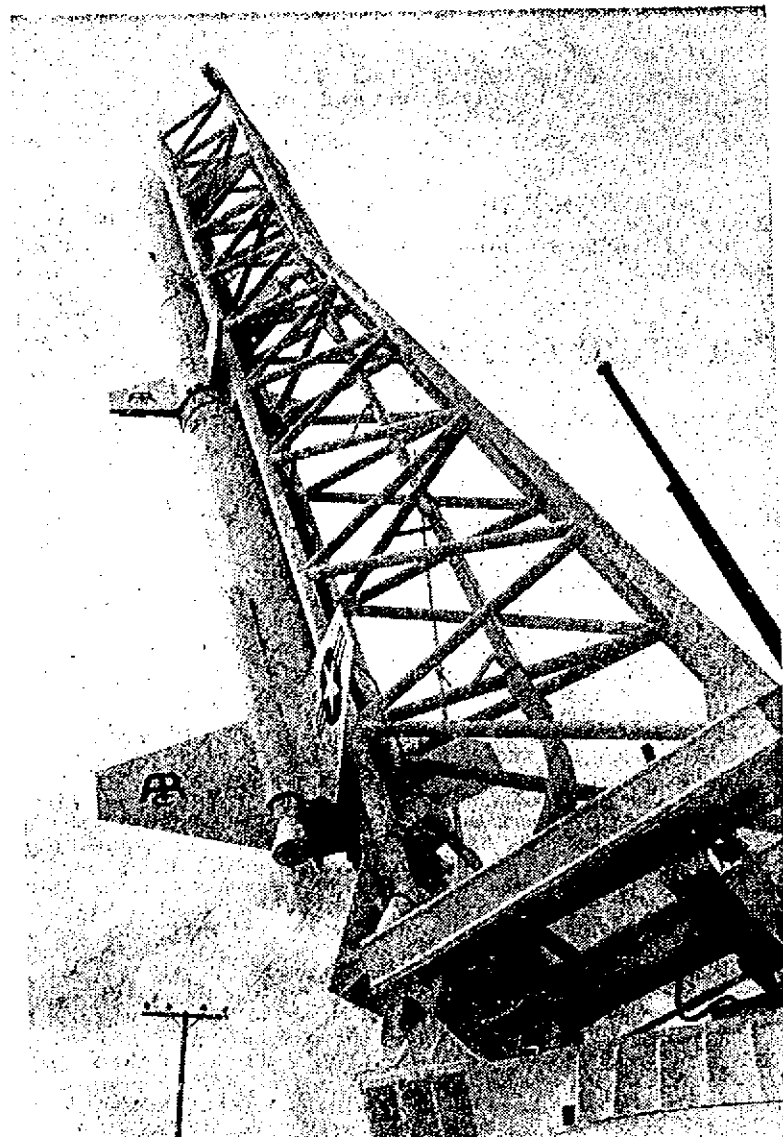

Further diversification has been made into the expanding field of data handling equipment and with the production of pyrotechnics and related ordnance materials.

New York's world trade center operation watched

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business-Real Estate Editor

A studious eye has been cast by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce at the possibility of creating a world trade center in this area.

The planning is complex. The benefits could be great.

A look toward the East Coast renders a good view of just how complex such planning can be — and how great the expected benefits.

The World Trade Center on the shore of the Hudson River in Lower Manhattan is filling up with tenants and now that it no longer dazzles the public by sheer size questions are being asked.

What will it really do for the Port of New York and American exports? For business in general? Are the twin 110-story towers on the 16-acre site, currently the tallest man-made structures in the world, worth the $650 million cost?

A business center housing 50,000 persons and visited probably by 80,000 others daily must generate new business or cut costs on existing business to justify such an investment.

The center, hailed as a trade "supermarket serving the world," will do both, according to Guy Tozzoli, director of the World Trade Department of the Port of New York Authority.

The Port Authority, in persuading the New York and New Jersey legislatures to authorize the center, contended it would fulfill a need felt for decades.

That appears to be backed up by the demand for space in the two towers and eight other buildings. Although it will not be completed until 1973, leases already have been signed for 80 per cent of the space and a few tenants have taken 100-year leases.

Thirty-three of the 700 tenants are banks. Tenants were signed by renting offices in Zurich, London and Tokyo as well as New York. They range from importing firms with five employees to the biggest global airline and steamship companies, the U.S. Customs Service and many U.S. and foreign government agencies.

There also will be eight acres of shops underground where almost anything from anywhere can be bought.

But the biggest accomplishment of the trade center will be its help to small firms, according to Tozzoli and others in the city's export-import community.

It will make available to small and middle sized firms for the first time in New York or any American port the total international trading facilities a big company like General Motors can enjoy.

Virtually under one roof, small exporters and importers will find buyers and sellers, a variety of financial services and offices of nearly all important ocean and air freight carriers.

Little firms will have available within a short elevator ride the consulates, customs bureaus and trade bureaus of 35 nations and specialists in insurance, bonding, foreign exchange and export credit.

This is important to, for instance, a modest firm in the Midwest. It can export by maintaining an office in the trade center or dealing with an agent who has offices there without having to assemble documents from Washington and countries of destination and hunt around for financing, transport and insurance.

"Many small American companies simply refuse to export because the physical problems are too tough to overcome," said a spokesman for the center. "Now they all can be solved in a day or so under one roof."

Many exporters and importers who have been in business in New York 20 to 75 years have signed for quarters in the center.

"They wouldn't do it if they weren't going to save time and money," the trade center spokesman said.

Bank losses rise

A survey by Business Week magazine indicates bank loan losses are heavier today than at any time since the thirties.

In an article titled "The Quality of Credit Is Strained," the business publication says the loan standards of commercial banks became "dangerously disheveled" in the last decade and that they are now reaping the harvest.

"The trend of the loss experience of the banks has been terrible," says Chairman William Renchard of Chemical Bank of New York. And Vice Chairman Frederick Holding of Philadelphia National Bank warns that the 1970s may yet be called the "decade of defaults."

In New York, bank stock dealer M. A. Schapiro & Co. estimates that loan losses in 1970, mostly because of the Penn Central debacle, were the heaviest for any single year since the 1930s.

The 10 members of the New York Clearing House Assn. ran aggregate net loan chargeoffs of $191.5-million.

And Chairman Walter Wriston of First National City Bank of New York conceded that the bank last year had to revise "our net loss estimate upwards to $47.7 million, or more than four times as much as originally anticipated."

Meantime, the discouraging loan trend appears to be continuing this year. In the first quarter of 1971, Chase Manhattan Bank of New York revealed it wrote off $19.9 million in loans.

Shoreline Beverage can collections rise

Shoreline Beverage, Adolph Coors Company distributor for the Long Beach area, has announced that for the first half of 1971, aluminum collection in the Coors cash-for-cans program is running "substantially ahead" of 1970, according to Ben V. Hopper, vice-president-division manager.

From January through June, local collections totaled 63,032 pounds of aluminum, equivalent to about 14,497,360 cans. In the comparable six-month period a year ago, the area Coors distributorship received 7,524 pounds of aluminum.

Like all other Coors distributors in the regional brewery's 11-state marketing area, Shoreline Beverage pays a dime a pound for aluminum containers as part of a Coors effort to fight litter and solid waste.

SINCE the cash-for-cans program began in January of last year, the local dis-tributorship has paid out $10,177.40 to individuals and organizations which have collected the aluminum. Participating civic and service groups have re-channelled much of that money into a wide variety of community projects.

All aluminum received in the program is forwarded for recycling.

Shoreline Beverage, 19618 S. Susana Rd., Compton, accepts aluminum from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. on Monday thru Friday. The program is not restricted to Coors cans. All clean aluminum containers are accepted.

Raising prices

AKRON (UPI) — B. F. Goodrich Co. will boost prices on tires and tubes for passenger cars, trucks and off-highway vehicles in the replacement market. The increase are approximately in line with increases posted recently by Goodrich's competitors.

This compares with only $1.8 million in the first quarter of last year. Also, the New York bank stock firm of Keefe, Bruyette & Woods, Inc., figures that loan losses for the nation's big banks as a group were 106 per cent higher in the first quarter of 1971 than a year earlier — after an 80 per cent jump in 1970.

Much of the increased bank losses comes from the strain of their heavy financing of two industries — aircraft manufacturers and the airlines — where good financial health is the exception rather than the rule.

Charles Woodruff, executive vice-president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, looking back at Penn Central, said, "We were awed by its size. We should have had more information about the company. But I've heard that Penn Central financial people were adroit in avoiding giving information."

Business Week index

BUSINESS, INDUSTRY WEEK

Steel production to new low

The index held steady this week. All components dropped except for auto production which shot up 24.8 per cent. Two GM assembly plants scheduled Saturday overtime.

Steel production slipped 2.9 per cent—a new low for this year.

Miscellaneous car loadings are down 3.5 per cent.

All other car loadings dipped 16.1 per cent, due in part to the drop in the shipment of coal because of coal miners starting their vacations.

Electricity went down 1.7 per cent. The figures for intercity truck tonnage were not available.

BUSINESSMEN FORESEE MODEST economic improvement during the rest of this year, but little real progress, if any, against inflation and unemployment, Industry Week reported this week.

Most businessmen expect a flat or weak third quarter, followed by a more robust fourth quarter, the business magazine said.

The fourth quarter, according to a number of economists, could be an economic turning point of sorts, with the recovery pace quickening substantially.

Prospects for the rest of the year are described, however, in cautious terms. Most economists expect the third quarter to be affected by a steelworkers' strike, or if there is none, by a user reduction in steel inventories. They believe, however, that the recovery will continue, but it won't abort now, even if there is a steelworkers' strike.

The majority of economists are just not as fearful about the impact of a steelworkers' strike on the overall economy as they were in past years. Such a strike is not considered a severe hurdle to continued economic expansion. One economist said "we will come out on top in 1972 and the decade as a whole will show a higher growth rate than any decade in the past."

Although some quarters see a reduced likelihood of a steelworkers' strike, steel users are making a final effort to obtain delivery on all their outstanding steel orders to assure a sufficient supply and to balance their steel product inventories against anticipated needs.

Major users of steel will have generally laid in a 60-day supply of the metal by the expiration of steel labor contracts at the close of July 31. These stockpiles will cut steel demand in the months ahead with or without a strike. At the same time, the summer vacation period will reduce current consumption of steel, the magazine pointed out.

Early completion of steel inventory building has caused raw steel output to fall substantially since the first of June in most of the nation's 11 steelmaking districts. Exceptions are the Detroit district, where it has remained strong because of the high rate of steel usage in the automobile industry, and the Cincinnati, St. Louis, and Southern districts. Output has climbed in the St. Louis district.

FIRST 14-FOOT KIT MOBILEHOME

Keys to first 14-foot-wide KIT mobilehome produced in California are handed to Dean Dion (left), Harbor City dealer, by Robert M. Swaffield, vice president-sales, as William E. Lewis, senior vice president-general manager, watches. KIT has been producing 14-foot-wide models at its Oregon, Idaho, Kansas and Ohio plants. Freeway movement of big models has not yet been authorized in state, but this move was accomplished with permits for city and county roads. Industry anticipates nearly half-million families will purchase new mobilehomes this year, 30,000 of them in California.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

It's gold—with tax shelter

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maybe I'm just a starry-eyed dreamer, but my ambition is to make so much money I won't have to pay an income tax. It can be done.

In 1969, according to recently released figures, 56 persons reported adjusted gross incomes of $1 million or more with no taxes due. This should serve as an inspiration to us all.

Admittedly, these untaxed millionaires represented only a tiny portion of persons filing returns that year. Nevertheless, the figure is highly encouraging, for it shows that the number is growing.

In 1968, there were only 31 nontaxable millionaires. Even more encouraging is the fact that you don't have to make a billion to achieve tax free status. The Internal Revenue Service reports that 301 persons making merely $200,000 or more in 1969 owed no income tax.

ONCE again, the most heartening thing was the increase, up from 222 in 1968.

Well, that's America for you — a land of opportunity. And it gives us all something to think about.

My spirits were dampened somewhat by Treasury Secretary John B. Con-

New bank

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The largest multibank holding company in Ohio, BancOhio Corp., said it plans to establish a new bank in the Cincinnati area, to be known as the Community National Bank of Cleveland. BancOhio said it would be its first bank in the area.

WHAT IT finally boils down to, I suppose, is a matter of faith — do you or don't you believe in loopholes? I myself am a believer.

You can't always see them, 'tis true, at least with the naked eye. But deep down in my heart I know the loopholes are there and that somewhere in this broad land there's a tax attorney who will find them.

Not believe in tax loopholes? I could as easily not believe in federal aid to impacted areas and cost overruns on military contracts.

A top New York banker says that, if banks are to get their loan standards back in shape, they will have to involve more people in the loan decision, perform more fundamental research, and review each loan every six months.

And Woodruff believes that banks must look more at cash flow and rely more on computers to make an analysis of loan prospects.

Parker firm tells of RHE addition

John Parker, president of Parker Advertising Inc., has announced the addition of a new four-story building to adjoin the existing facility located at 609 Deep Valley Drive, Rolling Hills Estates.

The first Parker building was completed in 1968. The glass-and-steel structure houses the agency on its four floors.

According to architect Eberling, the second structure will provide a total of 40,000 square feet of office space in the combined building, with an additional investment of $750,000.

WHEN the project is completed, the advertising agency will have a $1½ million dollar investment.

The Parker Advertising buildings are the only ones of their kind specifically designed and laid out for an advertising agency.

The second structure will be accessible by means of three connecting bridges to facilitate movement of employees and clients. Colors, decor and furnishings in the new building will be identically keyed for maximum aesthetic appeal and efficiency.

Collins-Watts firm opens Newhall office

ing of his ninth office at 23244 N. Fernando Road, Newhall.

It is the firm's second new opening in two weeks, and the second office to be opened in the San Fernando Valley. Jerry Scarpia, manager of the company's Saugus office, will also manage the Newhall office.

Collins and Watts currently has 20 listings in the Newhall-Saugus area, most of them in the $21,000 to $30,000 price range. The new office will handle general home sales as well as commercial and residential investment transactions, Collins said.

Larwin in financing for K-Mart

Larwin Mortgage Investors has made loans totaling $7 million for the financing and construction of four K-Mart discount stores located in Denver, Albuquerque, Huntington Beach and Las Vegas.

Southwestern Land and Development Company was the borrower in the loans. The company is the largest developer of K-Mart stores in the nation, having built more than 100 stores.

Two loans of $1.5 million each were made for the construction and financing of a 104,000 square foot Albuquerque store and a 116,800 square foot Las Vegas store. A third loan of $1.7 million was made for the construction of a 116,800 square foot K-Mart in Denver, and a $2.1 million loan was made for the financing of the 116,900 square foot Huntington Beach store.

Larwin Mortgage Investors has now completed the financing of 12 K-Mart stores in the United States and Canada since 1969.

Claims settled

NEW YORK (UPI) — Freeport Minerals Co. has agreed to settle for $1.5 million plus interest a series of income claims growing out of its deductions for assets of a former subsidiary seized by the Castro government in Cuba prior to 1959. The company said in its 1970 annual report that the tax deficiency liability might be as large as $9 million.

F. Y. Clark's L.B. firm shuts doors

One of Long Beach's oldest businesses has closed its doors.

"Even if there were a demand for my work, I'd retire now, anyway," says 75-year-old F. Y. Clark, closing down the Paris Button & Pleating Company, 225½ E. Broadway.

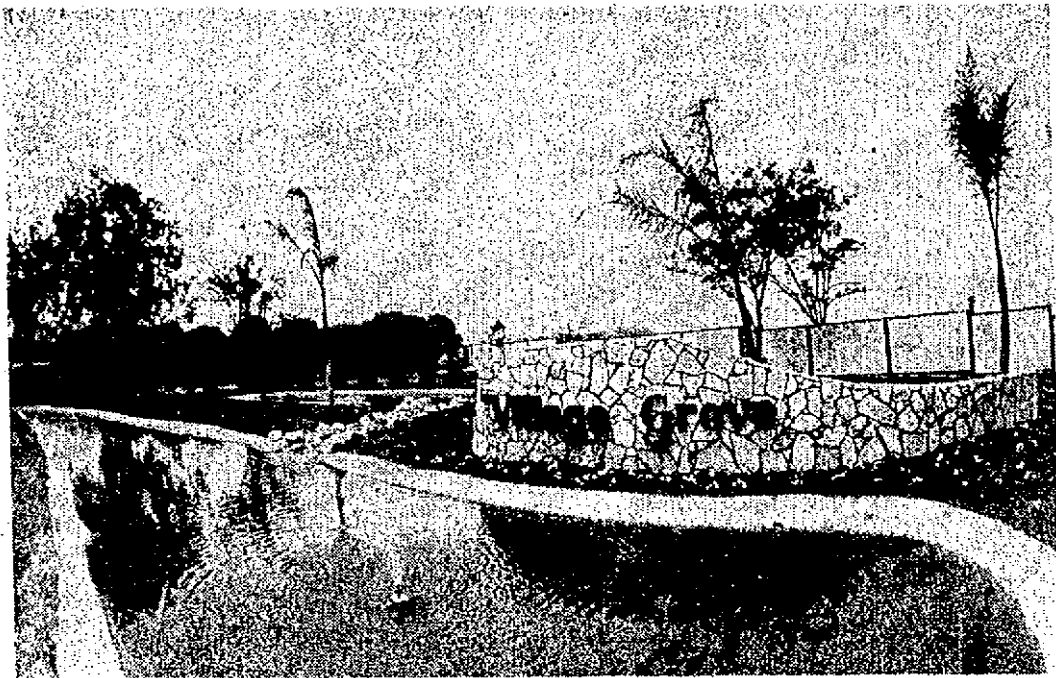

Clark and his mother, the late Lulu E. Clark, started the business on Third Street in 1916, later moved it to Fourth Street. Forty-two years ago they chose the Broadway address "as business picked up."

When his mother retired, Clark maintained the firm's good name for expert button-hole installation, fine pleating work and cloth covered buttons, buckles and belts.

Village Grove, Corona, showplace for community living

Village Grove, $18.5 million development of Corona Land Company in Corona, is rapidly acquiring the polish that will make it a California showplace for community living. Artistically landscaped greenbelts, intertwined by strolling paths, musical waterfalls and running brooks that link four small lakes, promises future residents of the development a deep, quiet eye-resting pleasure.

PARK-LIKE ATMOSPHERE AT VILLAGE GROVE... Evident At Entrance

Four model townhouses and four condominiums, all tastefully decorated and luxuriously furnished, have been completed on the shores of the lake and some patio homes are being completed within the 165-acre project, located at Sherman and Smith Streets in Corona.

D. E. Serafini, president of Corona Land Company, said the residences will soon be ready for the public to see.

In all, there will be 784 dwellings built in the community and they will include 26 apartment structures with 104 apartments, 181 single-family residences, 96 duplexes, 252 fourplexes and 151 townhouses.

The single-family patio homes have two and three bedrooms, while the fourplexes will offer one, two and three bedrooms. The townhouses contain from 970 to 1,065 sq. ft. Utilities for the entire project are underground.

Village Grove has just opened its 38-acre mobilehome park, which is walled off from the rest of the community.

Village Grove Mobilehome Park is a park-within-a park, with its own clubhouse-lodge, with dancing, banquet facilities, swimming pool, Jacuzzi pool, hibachi barbecues, shuffleboard, billiards and game rooms.

The mobilehome park is for adults only, and has its own greenbelts, winding walkways for delightful evening strolls, waterfalls and running brooks.

The 246 mobilehome spaces, averaging 52 by 75 feet, are priced from $8,900.

PROMOTED

Inge Reing, Huntington Beach, has been promoted to assistant manager-operations at Bank of America's Seal Beach branch. She joined bank in 1959.

NAMED

William Campbell, 24, of Long Beach, is new manager of Lakewood Plaza office of Aven Financial Services, 2923 Palo Verde Ave.

ADVANCED

Mrs. Winifred Teeter, Long Beach, with Bank of America since 1951, has been promoted to general lending officer at El Toro branch.

Only four homes left at Cerritos Village

Only four more homes remain at Cerritos Village, the luxury community being closed out by Buccola Homes at 195th Street and Norwalk Boulevard, Cerritos.

"We've been open here just about a year and we know we can sell these remaining homes," said George D. Buccola, president of the building company, "so we're making one last push."

Cerritos Village is a community of one and two-story homes, with three and four bedrooms and three baths. The homes are priced from $32,995.

"Unlike many other communities, once these homes are sold, there will be no more. We were unable to obtain more land, so this will be our only project in Cerritos for now," said the builder.

ALL OF the extras are included in the price of these Cerritos Village homes, which include wall-to-wall carpeting, shake roofs, rear yard fencing, concrete driveways and decorator hardware and fixtures.

Also featured are all electric kitchens with built-in range, oven and automatic dishwasher.

Buccola, who has been building homes in Southern California for more than 20 years, has been honored not only by families who are living in his many homes, but by professionals as well.

Last year, his homes in Orange won for him the General Electric Gold Key award and just recently the Pacific Coast Builder's Conference was the scene of another award — the Gold Nugget, as a symbol of building excellence.

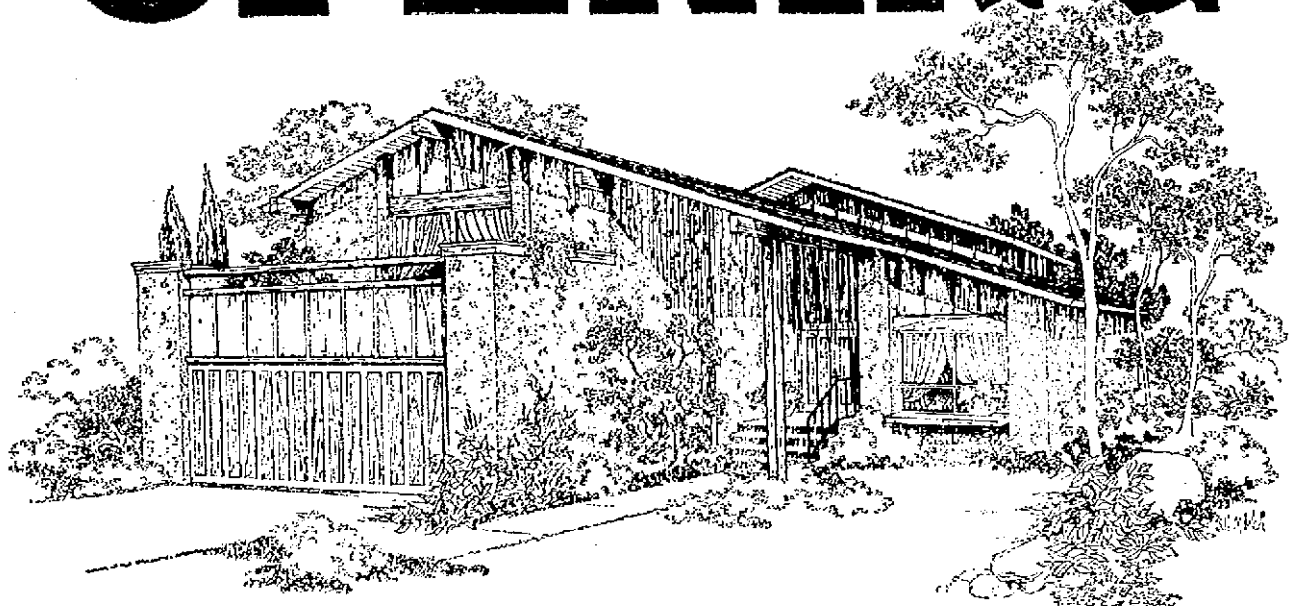

CERRITOS Village Homes are served by a fully established school district, which has one of the highest ratings in the area. A junior college also serves the community. A large regional shopping center is almost completed, only minutes from the community.

"We honestly expect to have these last few homes sold immediately, and we do want to emphasize that these are absolutely the last ones," he added.

To see these fully furnished and decorated homes, take the San Gabriel River Freeway (Highway 605) to the Artesia Freeway (Highway 91) and drive east to Norwalk Boulevard, then south to the models.

The homes and sales office are open daily from 10 a.m. until dusk.

Landmark-Cerritos homes set for immediate move-in Homes are available for immediate occupancy at the Landmark Homes project in Cerritos, according to Dick Sheakley, sales manager for the development.

"Today's homebuyer doesn't want to wait three or four months for his new home to be completed and he doesn't have to," Sheakley said. "He can move right into one of our new Landmark Homes without waiting an extra day."

The project is now almost 90 per cent sold out, with only 15 of the original 115 homes remaining. All five floor plans are still available.

Landmark also offers home seekers a highly successful innovation called the "creative side yard."

THE CONCEPT moves the home to the edge of the lot line and expands the other side of the yard by a full five feet. It eliminates two useless small side yards in preference for one large one.

The large yard now extends to the wall of the home next door. Since the wall of that home sits right on the property line and has no windows, there is complete privacy in the new side yard. The lots are also fully fenced for additional privacy.

Sheakley pointed out that the extra space can be used as an extended patio, a pool area, garden, children's play area or for trailer or boat storage.

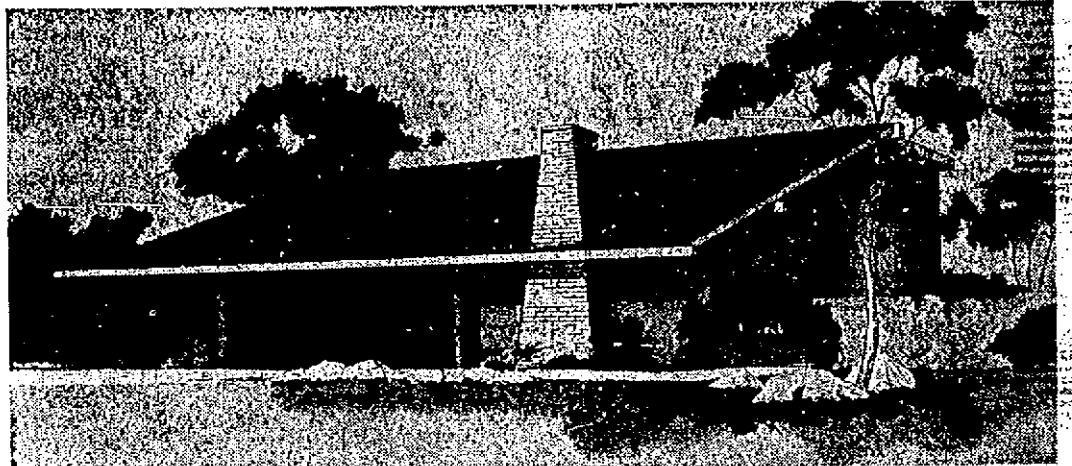

The one and two-story models are priced from $28,375. A 5 per cent down payment plan is available.

INCLUDED in the purchase price are forced air heating, fireplaces, acoustic ceilings, built-in television antennas, and carpeting. Most plans have three-car garages.

The amenities also include rear yard fencing complete with gate, front lawns and sprinklers, and patio kitchens with built-in double oven-range, disposal and dishwasher.

The development is a completely private walled community with underground utilities.

To reach the new Landmark Homes model area from the San Gabriel (605) Freeway, take the South Street exit east. From the Artesia Freeway, take the Norwalk Boulevard exit south to South Street, then turn left to the five model homes.

MORE SEEN IN PUBLIC AREAS

Carpeting passes fire-retardant tests

Fiery debate over prevention of fatal blazes in public buildings and health facilities has sparked stiffer government construction codes and regulations for fire-retardant furnishings.

Carpeting is one furnishing receiving a great deal of attention regarding flammability standards, according to an official of the Compounders Council, an organization of latex and foam compound suppliers to the carpeting industry.

"Concern for more fire-retardant carpeting stems from the fact that millions of square yards now are being installed in offices, schools, health facilities and other buildings each year," said Harvey Howalt of the Compounders Council.

"In the past decade, more than 4-billion square yards of carpet have been installed in the U.S., with only one major fire in which carpet was in any way involved," Howalt emphasized.

confusing regulations are expected for carpeting used in inpatient areas of government hospitals, with the introduction of a new flame spread test by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

"COMPOUNDERS are playing a vital role in the development of more fire-resistant carpeting," Howalt explained. "Recently, a new, economical, fire-retardant rubber foam backing, which passes all required government tests, was developed for the carpeting industry."

"The newly developed foam backing is a blend of alumina hydrate, a fire-retarding additive; natural polymers, and a specially processed synthetic latex provided by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company," Howalt reported.

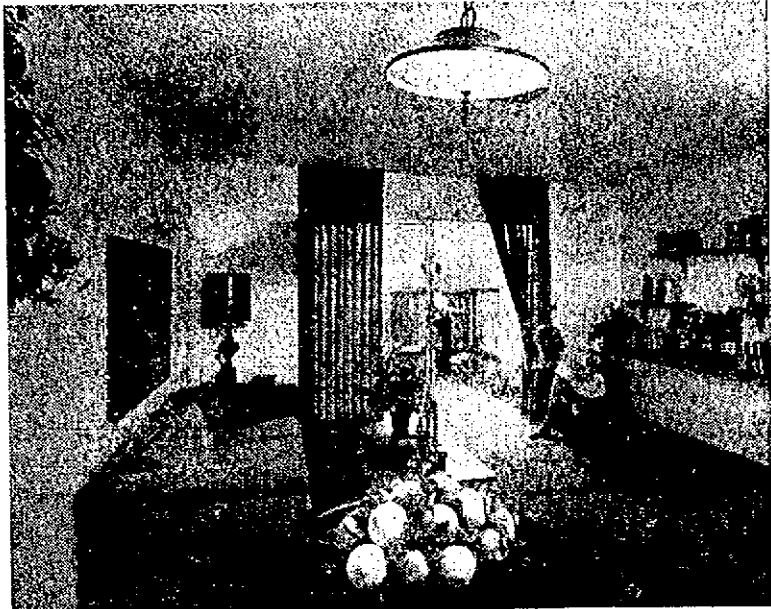

For all carpet used in homes, offices, schools and other buildings, the Commerce Department requires that the carpet pass the "Pill Test," Howalt related.

A tablet is ignited in the center of an eight-inch ring placed on the carpet, and the flame must then extinguish itself before spreading to within an inch of the ring at any point.

This same test is conducted voluntarily on the carpet backing.

"There would be safe storage space under the runways for all the petroleum the metropolitan area needs and much other cargo as well," Lerner said. "There also would be room for a nuclear power plant, although it isn't essential to the plan."

Lerner estimates the total cost of the complex at $8 billion and said it could be paid for mainly by intelligent conversion of part of the real estate assets

Fast fill-up at mobile home park

Open two weeks, Lamplighter Harbor City family mobile home park has achieved an outstanding initial fill-up rate, with more than 50 per cent of the available 192 spaces rented.

The $2.2 million project, developed by Los Angeles-based Mobile Housing Environments, was designed to meet the "total community" requirements of today's market.

The Lamplighter park is at 760 W. Lomita Blvd., between Figueroa and Vermont, in Harbor City.

Mobile Housing Environments, Lamplighter Harbor City developer, is a joint venture of Barclay Hollander Curci, Inc. and Transamerica Development Company.

NOW, even safer carpeting is a certainty, for all carpet surfaces now must pass a new federal flammability standard adopted by the Commerce Department, he explains.

Furthermore, the carpet industry has voluntarily extended the standard to include all carpet backing, resulting in the development of more flame-resistant foam backing by rubber latex manufacturers and compounders.

NEW HORIZONS, 1920-1950, by Henrietta M. Larson, Evelyn H. Knowlton and the late Charles S. Popple. Harper & Row, $12.50.

This is the third volume in the history of Standard Oil Company.

Prepared under the auspices of the Business History Foundation, Inc., "New Horizons" focuses on administration: central planning, policy making, and coordination of operations with a decentralized management.

In the history of Standard Oil, 1927 marked a turning point.

That year the board of directors decided radical changes in the structure and policies of the company had to be made in order to maintain a strong market position.

By 1927 it had achieved its goal of a firm over-all position abroad: total sales in foreign markets surpassed those in the United States.

In a period marked by increased demand for petroleum products and basic transformations in the world's economies, government, and society, Jersey carried on a broad program of research and development, making significant changes in its products, organization, personnel, and attitudes toward their employees.

In these years of growth and change it made important acquisitions of resources and facilities in the Far East, the Middle East, South America and Europe.

In the 1940s, Standard Oil responded to increasing government intervention and shifts in the focus of national and international power with new explorations and experiments in their relations with government and the public.

By 1950 Jersey had built an efficient employee organization both at home and abroad, and completed a transformation from a relatively simple and experimental company into a sophisticated, complex and powerful one. — RLB

THE CONSCIENCE OF THE CORPORATIONS, by Jules Cohn. The Johns Hopkins Press, $6 cloth, $1.95 paper.

Full title of this expertly written volume is "The Conscience of the Corporations: Business and Urban Affairs, 1967-70."

When America's festering racial tensions erupted suddenly and violently in the ghetto riots of 1967, the federal government came under heightened pressure to find new solutions to problems which had so far proved intractable.

With high hopes and considerable attendant publicity, the government fastened on the business community as the source of a major new effort to bring relief to the nation's ghettos.

Responding to strong government pressure and to their own sense of corporate responsibility, business leaders hastened to cooperate. Now, after four years, what has come of these corporate poverty programs?

Cohn answers that question in the most comprehensive study to date of what happens when corporations get into the business of poverty.

On the whole, Cohn finds few companies satisfied with the progress they have made. After several "cool" summers, government interest in their efforts has perceptibly waned, and in the midst of a recession, many are re-evaluating their commitments. — RLB

OPEN LAND FOR URBAN AMERICA, by Joseph James Shomon. The Johns Hopkins Press, $7.50.

Seventy-five per cent of the people on 2 per cent of the land. A million acres of land disappearing annually to the ravages of "progress": highways, housing developments, schools, industry.

Urban America's familiar catalog of grim statistics shows every promise of becoming even grimmer under mounting pressures of the population explosion and rising prosperity. What hope is there of preventing our cities from becoming virtual prisons of concrete in the decades ahead?

This book discusses how concerned citizens can go about preserving, reclaiming, open spaces in and around their cities, for use as parks, wildlife sanctuaries, recreation areas, or simply as quiet, leafy pockets in the midst of the downtown sprawl.

The author cites examples in cities across the nation and outlines the strategies their citizens have used successfully in preserving open land, despite tremendous pressure from would-be developers.

He is Director of the Nature Center Planning Division of the National Audubon Society, which has itself won some important victories of late, notably in enjoining the Army Corps of Engineers from continuing to divert water from the Everglades National Park in Florida. — RLB

Rumpus room 'in' at Cherry Cove

Heavy homebuyer response to a new home plan at Cherry Cove in Lakewood, which accents a large rumpus room in a two-story entertainment area, is sparking rapid sales in the sixth and final increment of the 278-home Barclay Hollander Curci, Inc., community, reports John Gause, vice president.

Gause revealed sales in the last unit of 49 homes in the popular development are nearing the halfway mark.

"The rumpus room-recreation emphasis of the new plan has created tremendous interest among homebuyers who want homes that both serve their family needs and make it easy to entertain large gatherings.

Feature of the new interior is the finished second-story rumpus room that overlooks the spacious living room. Both areas become "one" during large scale entertaining.

OTHER features of the plan include a raised entry, step-down living room, and serve-through bar to the patio. Offered for the first time in the 278-home community is a fully-enclosed dining room.

Offering homes priced from $32,900 to $40,700, Cherry Cove has been one of the communities taking advantage of fully-developed shopping and recreation areas in and around Lakewood.

Sixth Spires restaurant opens in Carson area

The sixth Spires Family Restaurant has been completed at 22327 S. Wilmington in Carson.

The $300,000 coffee shop-dining room opened its doors this week, according to John Haretakis, president.

The new Spires has more than 5,000 square feet of space and will seat 138 persons. Parking facilities for 75 cars are located immediately adjacent to the restaurant.

The facility is octagonally shaped and has the familiar red tile roof that has been used as an architectural design factor since the first Spires unit was constructed.

SPIRES' central display cooking area has been centered in the structure which divides public floor space into two distinct areas for coffee shop-lunch counter customers and family dining room patrons.

All Spires Restaurants are open 24 hours a day and specialize in businessmen's lunches and low-cost family dinners.

Other Spires units are located in Anaheim, Fullerton, Norwalk, Downey and Santa Ana.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

It's difficult to make housing boom projection

By DON CAMPBELL

It's a little difficult to remember a time in history when the crystal ball has been fuzzier in trying to get the future in sharp focus. After the big bust in 1969 and 1970 — followed by the big expansion drive by the Federal government in the early weeks of 1971 — it is still a little difficult to know where we are going. In real estate, as in any business, there has never been a more difficult time to make a sensible projection.

MR. CAMPBELL:

I have had a fair amount of success in the past 10 or 15 years in the financing of commercial real estate construction — specifically, one regional shopping center and four or five professional, office buildings.

I've been associated for a few years with a general contractor in these ventures and it is now his idea that we switch tactics and move into the residential field. To support his argument he uses the increase in new housing starts earlier this year, and the current projections for the market over the next year or 18 months.

It certainly looks like a booming field but I'd like your opinion on the outlook for the home-building market. Mr. F.F.S.

ANSWER: I know that this is going to put me definitely out of step with an awful lot of authorities in the field — not to mention the government's own economists — but I am inclined to view, rather skeptically, the promise of a big, immediate boom in the housing market.

There's no denying, certainly, that the potential buyers are there — they're stacked up like logs of firewood.

Among the young people between the ages of 18 and 24, we're going to see their numbers increase from 25 million at the beginning of 1971 to about 30 million by 1980.

And, more significantly, the biggest expansion is going to come in the 25 to 34 year-age group — from 26,000,000 today to 37,000,000 by 1980 — the age period during which family formations are heaviest and the need for new housing is the most acute.

By the end of this decade, we will be seeing about 2.8 million marriages occurring annually.

For the immediate future, though, I can't really see the sort of housing explosion taking place that everyone else seems to assume.

In the first place, housing costs have soared to such an extent that the median priced home now on the market is nudging the $30,000 level and, while today's young workers are earning relatively high pay, we've gotten to the point where the average home buyer has to have an annual income of about $12,000 to qualify for such a purchase, which is still a whale of a lot of money at age 25.

Add to this the young Americans' loss of the savings habit — without which he is going to have a hard time coming up with the down-payment for his dream home — and, with confidence in the economy still a bit shaky, his reluctance to obligate himself for 25 to 30 years, and I think that some skepticism on the big housing boom, at least for the time being, is justified.

MR. CAMPBELL:

The clothes dryer provided in my apartment is badly wired and, in spite of the fact that I have been badly shocked while using it, the landlord is still stalling me on having it repaired.

How badly shocked am I going to have to be before I have a good lawsuit against the landlord? — Mrs. T.L.

ANSWER: It depends, largely, on what you live in. Under some state laws, that is, the fact that you are continuing to use the dryer in full knowledge that it is badly wired, make the risk largely your own — you are, in other words, guilty of contributory negligence.

In other states, however, the landlord would be held liable if you get a really stiff jolt one of these days.

I would suggest that you stop using the dryer and have your lawyer contact the landlord and remind him that the provision of a clothes dryer in safe condition is a part of your rental agreement. He obviously needs a little nudging.

MR. CAMPBELL:

Will you tell me if it is still possible — after the recent changes in the tax laws — to follow through on the sort of arrangement that you described in a recent column in which a person who has $15,000 on hand could use it as the down payment on a $100,000 piece of income producing property as a long-term retirement investment?

For the next 20 years, as you described it, he plows virtually all of his income from this property back into improvements and, at retirement, has reduced the debt so that he has no additional tax liability and can retire on the income being generated.

Would you please advise me of any changes in the tax laws that would effect this? — Mr. G.C.

ANSWER: While there were some technical changes in the Internal Revenue Service procedures for handling depreciation, there were no sweeping alterations that would make the acquisition of income-producing property unattractive as a long-term retirement investment. Your lawyer, or accountant, can fill you in on this subject more completely than I.

MR. CAMPBELL:

In a recent article you quoted a letter to the effect that the lot had to be leveled off making it "about 10 feet lower than our neighbors." Isn't it true, that when existing natural lateral support is taken from adjoining property that the one altering the natural lay of the land is responsible for the restoring and lateral support? — Mr. M.E.S.

ANSWER: Under some state laws, this may be the case, but, unfortunately, far too many states take the position that the landowner has the right to get rid of surface water as he pleases, even though the result of this is to dump the water upon, and damage, the land of the adjoining owners.

Interference with drainage and surface water, that is, is permitted, whether it results from the building of homes on lower land, or from merely filling in the low spots. The law in these states takes the quaint position that surface water is a "common enemy" and every man must fight it as he pleases.

MR. CAMPBELL:

I read your articles in the paper all the time and find them very interesting and educational. Could you please advise me on this issue?

I just bought a house next to the one I live in. The interest rate for the mortgage is high, 8½ per cent, but the payment of $162 monthly isn't bad except that $102 for interest and the balance is taxes and principal.

Now, if you had the money to pay it easily and didn't need the cash urgently, would you pay the house off in cash? If yes, or no, would you please comment on it? — MR. A.P.

ANSWER: I don't mind commenting, but I'm a bit handicapped in knowing so little about your situation—financial and otherwise. (Is the house next door, for instance, a rental property or did you buy it for a relative's use?)

Being Scotch, of course, I'm always pained in having to pay interest costs of any kind, so I can sympathize with your frustration in seeing so little of your monthly payment going to principal.

Since the actual money involved doesn't seem to bother you very much (or, at least, that's the way I interpret your comment about paying the house off), why not compromise by refinancing the house for a shorter length of time and putting a larger payment down on it.

Although it will cost you more each month, you'll actually be saving money in interest and you'll have the satisfaction of seeing an increasingly larger chunk of each payment applying against the principal.

MR. CAMPBELL:

I was interested in your recent column in the answer you gave to a widow advising her that she is making a mistake "in hanging onto that $11,000 in cash while inflation is steadily reducing its value and while perfectly safe investments are yielding historically high returns."

Would you care to mention what "safe investments you feel would be good ones? I have some money in a savings and loan association, but would be interested in something else and would appreciate your views in connection with this. Mrs. H.R.L.

ANSWER: There's no great mystery to it, as I think I mentioned in the letter to which this correspondent has reference — "the safe investments" are to be found in top-grade corporate bonds which are currently yielding anywhere from 7½ to 9 per cent interest. While recently, the yields on new bond issues seemed to be slipping, somewhat, this seems to be leveling off at the moment and high yields, I believe, are going to continue to be the rule rather than the exception for some time to come.

I don't tout specific bond issues for the simple reason that I am not in the investment business, but any reliable broker can give you a list of outstanding issues currently available that fit the picture. Please remember that I emphasized TOP-GRADE corporate bonds. Don't be lured — by virtue of a slightly higher yield — into buying bonds issued by a corporation which has to "sweeten the pot" by paying an abnormally high yield to conceal the fact that it is on shaky financial ground. A good broker, as I have said, can separate the wheat from the chaff for you on this score.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We recently experienced a fire in our apartment which caused considerable damage to one end of our living room. Our landlord is now insisting that the cost of the repairs be paid by us since, he claims, the fire was a result of our negligence.

In the first place, there wasn't any negligence since we don't know how the fire started, but that it was apparently the result of a short-circuit which might, or might not, have been in our stereo record player. Can he hold us to this? — Mrs. G.G.N.

ANSWER: Unless your lease specifically provides that the tenant will be responsible for fire damage — which would make it a highly unusual form of lease in the first place — I can't see where the landlord has a leg to stand on. I suggest that you consult your attorney.

(Campbell welcomes letters. He is unable to enter into personal correspondence, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.)

Ford Motor Company has disclosed that all of its 17 North American passenger car assembly plants will be building 1972 models by Aug. 17.

William D. Innes, executive vice president-Ford North American Automotive Operations, said first 1972 production will be of the Lincoln-Continental, the newly styled Thunderbird, and the new Mark IV models starting at the Wixom (Mich.) Assembly Plant on July 12. The Los Angeles Assembly Plant will begin building 1972 Thunderbirds on Aug. 3.

All-new 1972 Ford Torino and Mercury Montego models will go into production at the Lorain (Ohio) Assembly Plant on July 19. The Torino also will be produced at Atlanta (Ga.) and Oakville (Ontario, Canada) assembly plants beginning Aug. 9.

Eleven of the company's passenger-car plants will make changeovers with virtually no downtime, Innes said.

"In most cases," he added, "these plants will end 1971 production on a Friday and start 1972 assembly the following Tuesday."

"The vehicles they build are designed for a high number of carry-over parts, with many changes to be made on a running basis. This will minimize assembly disruption and maximize quality. Employees will have more time to become familiar with new assembly techniques and processes, and plant management will be able to concentrate its attention on the individual changes as they are phased into the system."

Shutdowns for model changeover began June 11.

OOOPS! Oldsmobile built its 13th millionth vehicle in June but — in the flurry of business — overlooked the event. Ordinary, the least little milestone in the auto industry is seized upon as an occasion for making something of a public flourish.

One reason for Oldsmobile's oversight, however, is the fact that business has never been better for the nation's oldest continuous auto-maker. The division recorded its best-ever January through June sales with 343,265 retail deliveries reported by dealers in that period.

Earlier in the year, production forecasts had set the date for the assembly of the milestone 13 millionth car as July 19. But with sales soaring, the production rate was increased — and the 13 millionth Olds made its appearance somewhat prematurely on June 28.

"We were so busy," remarked a factory official, "that we forgot to cheer."

Since January, Oldsmobile's production is running more than 100,000 cars ahead of last year.

Founded in 1897, Oldsmobile produced its 1 millionth vehicle 38 years later. Now, the company produces a million cars about every 20 months.

New methods seen slicing building cost

FAIRFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — The improved supply of mortgage money has stimulated the construction industry in most parts of the country, but inflated costs on material and labor still keep a lot of much-needed commercial building from going past the drawing board stage, according to a building industry executive.

One major problem investors want to overcome is the lengthy time of construction, says Arnold Palmieri, president of Pre Cast Concrete Co. He says some see as the answer a wider adoption of the so-called "systems" method of construction to shorten the period between ground breaking and occupancy.

Palmieri's firm specializes in Uniframe, a comparatively new system that is capable of erecting some buildings in hours instead of weeks or months. He contends the pre cast method is 25 per cent less expensive, and about 75 per cent faster than use of other materials.

"SYSTEMS building is the answer to moving much of America's bogged-down building plans out of the blueprint stage," Palmieri said. He cited a national construction market study conducted by the Battelle Memorial Institute which forecast that, by 1980, about 90 per cent of all federally assisted housing will be constructed on a system basis, as will 65 per cent of all private multi-dwelling housing, 45 per cent of all industrial construction, and 30 per cent of all educational, institutional and hospital construction.

Palmieri, whose firm has solved cost-savings problems for banks, colleges and major corporations, said: "Structural concrete affords major savings in terms of time needed to complete a project. This makes it possible to free funds tied up in construction operations at a much earlier date."

"WITH INTEREST rates likely to stay at permanently higher levels, such savings assume major importance to developers. The time factor is also important because it makes it possible for a developer to realize a return on his investment in a project at an earlier date."

Structural concrete provides a basic structure, but also contributes the facade of a building. This makes possible major additional savings, both in terms of cost and time, Palmieri said. Compared to other construction materials, pre cast concrete is said to be the least expensive, the most durable, and requires the least maintenance. The fact that concrete is fireproof helps reduce fire insurance rates.

Low-cost housing — without austerity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Low-cost housing should not, and need not, mean austerity living, according to one maker of residential products.

"Yesterday's luxuries have become today's necessities in the home, and many conveniences can be made available in subsidized housing, provided that architect, builder and supplier work together to keep costs down," says E. Herbert Bladh, group vice president of the Seavill Company's building products operation.

Bladh referred specifically to Department of Housing and Urban Development sections 235 and 236 which provide government assistance to lower-income families seeking home ownership, and to owners of rental housing projects for low-income families. Most of an estimated 42 per cent increase in subsidized housing starts — from 450,000 units in 1970 to upward of 635,000 units this year — can be expected to be within the framework of these government programs, Bladh said.

HE EXPLAINED that certain equipment once available only in high-cost dwellings, such as ventilators for inside bathrooms, now is required by code. Other necessities completely include range hoods as the only practical means for ventilating kitchens, many of which no longer have windows, intercom systems and bathroom heaters, especially in regions of the country where central heating systems aren't a necessity.

Other optional equipment in HUD-supported housing projects, Bladh suggested, might reasonably include decorator and recessed lighting fixtures, door chime units and exhaust fans.

Building economies, too, should receive careful consideration, he said. These can include the use of standard built-in cabinetry in kitchen and bath, and factory-finished window and door assemblies which make possible a marked decrease in on-site construction expense.

THE CHIEF beneficiary of many such features, Bladh suggested, will be the housewife, whereas she is the chief sufferer from lack of planning which has resulted in the past in austerity in lower cost dwellings.

As examples he mentioned intercom systems which provide hear-who-door answering service, an important consideration in the growing need for home security; built-in storage to help overcome the space limitations necessary in project housing, and factory-engineered windows which, with their readily removable sash, make them easy and safe to wash.

Although equipment, of necessity, probably will be economy models, Bladh said, "there can be no compromise in quality, because all must carry factory guarantees and earn Underwriters Laboratory and FHA approval. The cost savings must come through design simplification, materials development and manufacturing efficiencies."

Often, Bladh suggested, extra thought in planning will provide a substantial increase in amenities at little or no extra expense. In multiple dwelling buildings this holds true in the public rooms as well as in individual apartments.

BLADH STRESSED the social desirability of including what might appear to some to be needless and extravagant trimmings for government-assisted housing.

"Americans of all walks of life have become aware of the improvements that now are available," he said. "Therefore utter austerity would do nothing but decrease the market-ability of housing units that still must be sold or rented for the programs to be successful."

"Also, amenities for good living included in the home package will encourage the long-range careful maintenance of these housing units by owners or tenants that they must have to preserve their appeal and, as a result, their market value."
